Shanghai, March 27.—Twelve merchant ships are lining the bund in case it is decided to evacuate the French concession. Two attacks were made on the barricades guarding this district tonight, at 7:30 and 8 o'clock, and the mobs were forced out of the concession only after armored cars had been brought up to support the police.

One Chinese was wounded when the police fired on the second mob, after it had smashed an alleyway barricade. This barricade is still unrepaid.

Tonight the citizens of Shanghai slept, exhausted by the tension which has gripped the city throughout the day. Emergency squads have visited French posts every half hour and more barricades are being built about the concession with barrels of cement and barbed wire.

Mob Is Dispersed.
The little north gate was fifteen feet deep in barbed wire this morning, and at three p. m. five hundred Cantonese soldiers dispersed a crowd about north station.

The Cantonese are guarding the Chinese areas before the more dangerous points. At Saint Catherine's bridge blockhouse, which is built of solid concrete, fifteen soldiers with machine guns aimed through cannon-flashed holes, unknown to the Chinese, overlook the west gate demonstration district.

The French consul in an interview today, denied that there was any friction between the local powers. He would make no statement about the visit which the consul's staff officials.

The business of welcoming Chiang Kai Shek was one of the principal factors in keeping the settlements tense. General headquarters, heavily guarded by picked troops, was thronged with visitors who were carefully scrutinized before they were permitted to enter. The Cantonese guards were polite but firm.

A fifteen-year-old Cantonese soldier whom I had seen at Hankow recognized me, grinned and said in broken English "you never expected to see us here, well, we didn't expect to be here, so soon."

Florists Are Busy.
Florists did a rushing business in flowers for presentation to the general. Rickshaws have rattled through the streets toward headquarters all day and I saw one Chinese hand of 20 pieces on its way to serenade the general. General Pai last night gave a banquet to his friends at the Palais cafe, inside the French concession.

In a press interview this morning, Chiang again guaranteed the security of the foreign quarter.
"The panic is unwarranted," he said. "The laborers will not storm the concession and the sandbags give a very unfavorable impression."
He announced that the northern campaign would begin soon and that he had telegraphed Foreign Minister Eugene Chen to come to Shanghai.

Lovett, Donaldson Case Suspect, Caught

ALLEGED MEMBER OF MURDER GROUP HELD IN ARKANSAS

Another of Indicted Men Named in Fichett Confession in Constitution
Is Captured.

Armed with a "fugitive from justice" warrant issued at the instance of Solicitor General John A. Boykin of Atlanta, county authorities of Lake Village, Ark., late Saturday night swooped down on a house in that place and arrested a man supposed to be Ralph B. Lovett, alias "Hot Rock," 28-year-old Atlantan, charged with being one of the three men present in the Georgian Terrace hotel room where Bert Donaldson, criminal investigator, was murdered on July 29, 1926. Lovett is reputed to be the most-sought-for fugitive of the group of underworld characters implicated in the crime.

This development in the nation wide man hunt which was inaugurated when Donaldson's dead body was discovered riddled with two shotgun discharges on the afternoon of July 30, last, was revealed by Associated Press dispatches Sunday night from the Arkansas town. Sheriff C. Merritt, of Lake Village, made the arrest at the home of Lovett's relatives, the dispatches stated.

Apprehended of the arrest of Lovett, Solicitor General Boykin was elated and declared that extradition papers for the fugitive's immediate return to this city will be sought today.

The most encouraging development in the Donaldson case since the exclusive disclosure made on March 7 last by The Constitution to the effect that Charles Hubert Fichett, former Atlanta policeman, had signed a detailed confession in which he admitted firing the shot that killed Donaldson and implicated eight other men, one of whom was Ralph Lovett, the man arrested Saturday. The arrest of Lovett was attributed directly to the confession obtained by The Constitution and turned over to the solicitor.

Description Supplied.
The arrest of Lovett came after Solicitor Boykin learned that the fugitive had close relatives residing in Lake Village. Communicating with Sheriff Merritt, of that place, Boykin arranged to have the house closely watched for a trace of the man wanted. A complete Bertillon description was supplied.

When Sheriff Merritt arrested Lovett, the latter offered no resistance, the dispatches stated. Declining to make a statement or to acknowledge his identity, the arrestee man declared that he would fight extradition to Atlanta. The description furnished by Sheriff Merritt said he has visited Lake Village several times in recent months. It was stated.

The vigorous efforts made to apprehend Lovett were inspired by the confession made to The Constitution by Fichett, in which statement he declared that Lovett was one of three conspirators in the hotel room when Donaldson was lured to his death. According to the confession, it was Lovett who planned the assassination and who directed Donaldson to place his hat upon a table in the room so that by doing so, the investigator would be maneuvered into such a

GEORGIA STUDENTS ARE REINSTATED

University Takes Back Editors of Paper After Desire Is Expressed To Apologize.

Athens, Ga., March 27.—(Special.) Ben F. Cheek, of Lavonia; Mercer Sherman, of Albany; A. J. Mathews, of Cuthbert, and Lane Allen, of Copperhill, Tenn., expelled editors of the "Iconoclast," independent student publication of the University of Georgia, have been definitely reinstated by the authorities of the institution, it was learned here today.

Chancellor Snelling is out of the city and could not be reached for an official statement. It is understood that the chancellor's action followed submission of a petition in which the editors expressed a desire to apologize for language that might be termed disrespectful. It also pointed out that their criticisms were prompted by a sincere desire to help the university, but conceded that their methods were mistaken although they had not intended to reflect upon the personal character of any one against whom their barbs were directed.

MAON OFFICERS GO FOR SUSPECTS IN HOGAN CASE

Orders for Enforcement of State's 200-Year-Old
Blue Laws Are Defied.
No Arrests.

CRUSADE DROPPED AGAINST GOLFING

Campaign Against Sport Is Suspended Until Su- preme Court Rules on Law Application.

Columbia, S. C., March 27.—(P)—Drug stores in Charleston, Greenville, and Spartanburg sold soft drinks today in defiance of Governor Richards' orders for enforcement of the state's 200-year-old blue laws, according to information received here this afternoon, but no arrests were made.

The lid was on tight in Columbia. A squad of the governor's constables was reported to have closed up a large number of places that opened in Charleston but four drug stores were said to have refused to obey the officers' orders, and continued business throughout the day.

Carlos A. Reuter, in charge of the constables, said warrants would be sworn out against the proprietors of the four places tomorrow. No arrests were made, as the state constitution prohibits the making of arrests on Sunday except in cases of treason, felony, or breach of the peace, and it was understood that plans had been made to take in custody any officer who attempted to make an arrest in Charleston on charges of violating the Sunday laws.

Motorists Buy Gas.

Motorists in Charleston bought gasoline without hindrance under the protection of a temporary restraining order issued yesterday by Circuit Judge William H. Grimball, preventing officers from interfering with the sale of gasoline, which Judge Grimball held to be a necessity.

Golfers throughout the state were free to play without molestation, Governor Richards having announced he would suspend his crusade against Sunday golfing until the supreme court rules upon whether the old Sunday laws apply to the game.

GOLF IS PLAYED ON CAMDEN COURSE.

Camden, S. C., March 27.—(P)—Golf was played here today, some 15 members of the Camden Country club appearing on their links this afternoon. No names of players were taken, as had been previously announced by Governor Richards, and if any of the governor's officers were sent to the course, they were unknown to the citizens.

Though filling stations remained closed during church hours, according to a city ordinance, gasoline and oil were dispensed during the rest of the day to applicants without official permit.

Other stores were closed, according to ordinance, and no arrests were reported.

INSIDE FACTS ABOUT CHINA

"Americans killed in China."

What's it all about?
Starting tomorrow and continuing in two subsequent installments, The Constitution will publish an informative, clear presentation of the Chinese situation by a Georgia man qualified by almost 30 years' residence in the interior of China—Dr. T. W. Ayers, of 113 St. Charles place, Atlanta.

Dr. Ayers, as the first medical missionary of the Southern Baptist conference, went to China in 1900 at the conclusion of the Boxer rebellion and returned here a few months ago. He was twice decorated for services, once by President Yuan Shi Kai for work done during the 1912 revolution, and by President Li Yuan Hung for having quelled the devastating bubonic plague a few weeks later.

In the thick of the revolutionary fighting and the Japanese drive against Kaichow during the World war; as organizer of the Red Cross in the Shantung province, and as a personal friend to many of China's greatest notables, Dr. Ayers is especially equipped to unfold the events which led to the present uprising. This he will do clearly and concisely in three interviews with Herb McCusker, staff writer of The Constitution.

Kidnaped Baby Is Left On Porch of Minister

$3,333 RANSOM IS REPORTED PAID

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 27.—(P)—

Virginia Jo Frazier, 2-year-old daughter of City Commissioner and Mrs. Fred B. Frazier, kidnaped from her crib last Wednesday night, was clasped in the arms of her mother tonight.

Under the effects of a drug, very dirty, and but partially clothed, the baby was found shortly after 10 o'clock on the front porch of Dr. Joseph G. Venable, pastor of the First Presbyterian church after her father had, on written instructions of the kidnappers, placed $3,333 in cash in the hands of a negro boy, whom he was instructed to meet at McCallie and Central avenues.

Dr. Venable called the police, a physician to examine the baby and the Frazier family. The baby was unharmed, the physician said.

Mr. and Mrs. Frazier, accompanied by members of the family, arrived a few moments later, identified the child as their own and then gave way to the reaction of the strain which they have bravely borne since they were notified of the kidnaping.

Virginia Jo recognized her parents and responded faintly to the endearing names by which her mother called her. But under the effects of the drug, the blue eyes, by which so many have sought to identify her in the search had lost their usual sparkle.

John E. Gilbreath, brother-in-law of Commissioner Frazier, and upon whose shoulders rested the responsibility of virtual leadership of the entire search for the missing child, unfolded tonight the story of the messages the Fraziers received from the kidnappers, their contents, and the actions taken upon them by the family. Weary and hollowed from the loss of sleep and from worry, he was incoherent in spots, but eager to give the details fully and clearly to the newspapermen, whom he said had cooperated splendidly in the search.

The first message from the kidnappers was a special delivery letter addressed to Mrs. Frazier and mailed in Chattanooga Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and received at the Frazier home a few hours afterwards. It demanded ransom of $3,333 for the return of Virginia. "We have your baby," it said. "It will take $3,333. She is all right, but last night was cold. We don't know what will happen this cold weather. Be ready with the money when we call you. This is not my writing, so you needn't try to trace me." It was unsigned.

The Fraziers secured the amount demanded in cash immediately following receipt of the letter and placed it in their home. It was necessary to have a bank official meet them at the institution with which he was connected, it then being early evening. Then they awaited developments. This morning they announced through the press that they had received a demand for ransom from the kidnappers of Virginia Jo, and were ready to pay the amount demanded and would guarantee the kidnappers' protection from the law if they would return the baby.

Tonight Fred Frazier, John Gilbreath and W. H. Hackett, chief of detectives, sat in Mr. Frazier's office in the city hall, conferring with a government operative who had insisted that they discuss with him the details of the communication they had received from the kidnappers through the mail.

Bearing a second letter from the kidnappers addressed to Mrs. Frazier, a police sergeant interrupted the conference. It had been turned over to him by a Western Union employee after a negro had thrust it into the hands of a messenger of the telegraph company, saying: "Take it to Mrs. Frazier. She'll pay the charges when you get there. I'm in a hurry."

The letter demanded that the money, $3,333, be carried to McCallie and Central avenues at 8 o'clock, and handed to a negro boy it said would be standing there with a broom handle.

50,000 CHINESE URGE STORMING OF CONCESSIONS

'Situation in Shanghai Is Now Very Tense,' Admiral Advises American Naval Department.

JAPAN AND BRITAIN INCREASE FORCES

Congestion Grows in Chinese Metropolis and Missionaries Are Urged To Go Home.

BY UNITED NEWS.
Repercussions of the anti-foreign uprising in China echoed around the world Sunday.

Inflammatory sentiment threatened American and British residents in Shanghai as that city became the center of Chinese hostilities.

In America, marines at 15 posts were being concentrated around the in the Orient. The navy department in Washington described the situation as "very tense" and announced the landing of more American, British and Japanese forces at Shanghai to meet impending mob outbreaks.

In Moscow, the communist third international issued a proclamation appealing against the British-American bombardment of Nanking during the Cantonese rioting of March 24.

Firing Saved Lives.
Almost simultaneously additional American refugees from Nanking arriving in Shanghai told the United News that the firing by British and American gunboats saved their lives and enabled them to escape the looting Cantonese mobs.

In London, the Exchange Telegraph company's Shanghai correspondent reported that the Wossing forts near Shanghai had been bombed by two north Chinese warships.

Outside the barricades of the international settlement in Shanghai, Chinese agitators caused passage of a resolution demanding immediately return of Shanghai foreign concessions to the Chinese on pain of proclaiming another general strike.

AMERICANS FACING GREATER ATTACK.

Shanghai, March 28.—(2 A. M., Monday).—(United News).—Scores of refugees Americans, fleeing the horrors of anti-foreign attacks in interior China, are arriving here to face the prospect of an even greater attack than any from which they fled.

As each day passes, the train brought more of those who witnessed the atrocities of Nanking, menacing crowds of demonstrators, shouting "Death to the foreign devils," could be heard across the barricades of the international settlement.

Fifty thousand Chinese sympathizing with the foreign forces, at a mass meeting in the native city, were urged to storm the barricades and exterminate all foreigners.

Wakened American, British and other foreigners, concentrated in the settlement, received word that the force on guard at the first line of defense was reduced to a small force of a large invading host of Chinese.

The evacuation of foreigners at Wuhu Yangtze river ports continued. Other, south of Nanking, is being cleared of all foreign nationals. The U. S. S. Preble has taken aboard those remaining at Taichow, north on the Yangtze and is now at Chinkiang, another Yangtze port, awaiting Americans who are attempting to leave Chaochow. A strong anti-foreign feeling is evident at Wuhu where Chinese soldiers with mounted guns are prepared to fire on river boats.

The thousands of Chinese at the mass meeting voted to demand restoration of the foreign concessions to the Chinese and if this was not granted to call another general strike.

ADDITIONAL AMERICAN FORCES ARE LANDED.

Washington, March 27.—(P)—Additional American forces were landed at Shanghai today to aid in protecting the international settlement from threatened mob outbreak.

"The situation in Shanghai is now very tense," Admiral C. S. Williams.

Milton C. Work Elaborates His Daily Bridge Pointers.

Milton C. Work, in his auction bridge column in The Constitution, has been presenting some very interesting "playing hands" so that his readers could actually play the problem and then learn, in the next day's article, the correct play for that hand.

The reaction to this has been so favorable and so great that Mr. Work has worked out a method of still further bettering the feature through including diagrams charting the correct play in a manner that will simplify it greatly for readers and intensify their already great interest in this feature.

The supremacy which Mr. Work's feature enjoys the country over will thus be further increased. Among other points of superiority in Mr. Work's feature is his judgment in the SELECTION OF PROBLEMS PRESENTED. An analysis of the problems presented in other bridge features shows a surprising failure on the part of those authors to appreciate what constitutes a satisfactory problem for the great mass of bridge players.

Through the fact that he lectures all over America and thus has an enormous number of personal contacts he KNOWS the strengths and weaknesses and the limitations of the great mass of bridge players.

It is this knowledge, which he ALONE in the bridge field possesses, that gives the problems he presents such an intense reader-interest and which have won for him such a great following.

IN TUESDAY'S CONSTITUTION

INJURED PITCHER REPORTED BETTER

While Milburn Shoffner, 19-year-old pitcher for the Rochester, N. Y., baseball team, was reported by attaches of St. Joseph's hospital as being virtually out of danger and rapidly recovering from a blow thought to have been struck with a baseball bat during the Atlanta-Rochester game at Spiller field Saturday, police were seeking one Roy Pledger, local pugilist who formerly fought under the name of "Irish Benny Cline" and whose cap was alleged by police to have been found near the spot where Shoffner was discovered lying unconscious.

Although Shoffner was said to have received a terrific blow on the skull, no fracture was sustained and he was thought to be on the road to rapid recovery late Sunday, hospital attendants said.

The attack occurred following Shoffner's removal from the baseball game. The youth, who formerly resided in Atlanta, had pitched six innings for Rochester against Atlanta. In the third inning he "beamed" Frank Zoeller, Atlanta player, with a fast ball. Zoeller, latter, angry for the moment, started after Shoffner with his bat but collapsed before reaching the pitcher's mound. Zoeller was taken to the clubhouse where first aid was applied.

Found Unconscious.

Meanwhile Shoffner continued pitching. After the sixth inning he was taken from the game in favor of a substitute pitcher and departed from the players bench for the clubhouse beneath the stands.

The next thing players knew Shoffner was discovered lying unconscious outside the clubhouse door. On the ground were signs of a scuffle and nearby lay a baseball bat and a gray cap. Detectives B. E. Blair and Roy H. Whitley, summoned to the scene, investigated and claimed that two spectators in the stands identified the cap as belonging to Roy Pledger, said to be a friend to Zoeller. Zoeller at the time was still receiving treatment at the training quarters.

Immediately a search for Pledger was instituted by detectives and police throughout the city. At the taxi stand where he was formerly employed, at a local hotel and at several places he was known to frequent, no trace of the man was to be had, officers reported. Meanwhile, R. J. Spiller, owner of the Atlanta team, announced a reward of $100 for the establishment of identity of the person or persons responsible for the attack on Shoffner.

Player Zoeller, of the Atlanta team, who was struck by a ball pitched by Shoffner, was removed to the Goodwin Baptist hospital where it was said that the blow had had no serious effects.

FORMER POSTMASTER AT MACON SUCCUMBS

Macon, Ga., March 27.—(AP)—June Bailey, 53, former postmaster and for 20 years division sales manager for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, died at midnight.

Mr. Bailey was a native of Winston-Salem, N. C., and "grew up" in the tobacco factory of R. J. Reynolds.

In 1919 he gave up tobacco and formed a coffee company here. Four years later he was appointed postmaster and served about two years. He had been divorced from the same wife twice, remarried after the first divorce. The second divorce was only recently granted.

His divorced widow and three children are in Thomaston, Ga. A brother resides in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Car Overturned By 'Road Hog,' Man Badly Hurt

H. C. Whitner, a young salesman stopping at a down town hotel, told doctors at Grady Sunday night that a "road hog" crowded the automobile he was driving into a ditch on Campbellton road where he narrowly escaped death as his machine overturned. The other automobile did not stop, he said.

Whitner was severely lacerated about the face and head, his right arm and shoulder bruised, and both knees badly smashed when he was brought to Grady by motorists who told attendants they found the injured man in his overturned automobile, being attracted to his aid by growling.

Whitner told doctors he was driving on Campbellton road when a high powered motor car overtook and passed him on the left, cutting back into the right hand side of the road so suddenly as to engage the left front wheel of Whitner's machine with the right wheel of the other automobile, hurling the injured man's car into the ditch where it overturned.

Whitner was unable to furnish any description of the automobile other than that it was a large sedan.

MILLION IS PAID YOUNG INVENTOR

New York, March 27.—(AP)—A check for a round million dollars was shoved into the pocket of a young man sitting room today into the hand of a young Russian socialist who in his days of hunger and hardship had invented an automatic camera to enable the public to photograph itself as simply as it buys its chewing gum, and in much the same way.

And the Russian, remembering his socialist doctrine despite his sudden transition into the capitalist class, immediately laid plans for sharing his money with the less fortunate. Transfer of the check marked the entry into the slot machine portrait photograph business of several leaders in the financial world.

Among the men represented in the transaction were Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey; James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America; John T. Underwood, president of the Underwood Typewriter company, and Raymond B. Small, former vice president and general manager of the Postum Cereal company.

The syndicate of business men gave the $1,000,000 check to Anatol Josepho, the Russian, for all his rights in a machine that delivers a strip of eight finished photographs, each two by one and a half inches long and all in different poses, eight minutes after the sitter has dropped a quarter in a slot.

"I believe," said Mr. Morgenthau after the meeting, which closed the deal and marked the formation of Photomat, Inc., a company which will operate a country-wide chain of automatic photograph studios but in which no stock will be sold, "that through this invention we can make personal photographs available to the masses of this country. We propose to do in the photographic field what Woolworth has accomplished in novelties and merchandise, Ford in automobiles and the chain store in supplying the necessities and luxuries of life over widespread areas."

Josepho, in response, said: "I plan to create a trust fund with half of this money, to be devoted to general charity. The other half I plan to administer in the interests of various inventions I consider worthy of development."

NEGRO IS CAPTURED IN ACT OF BURGLARY

LeRoy Baxter, negro, was in jail under a charge of suspicion Sunday night while police and detectives are making a search for his alleged accomplice in the robbery of a Texas company filling station at Baker and Ivy streets sometime before dawn Sunday.

Baxter and his pal, according to Patrolman S. C. Tuck, had broken into the filling station office and were engaged in the task of hammering open a pay station telephone money box when they had torn from the wall, when the officer made his advent.

Baxter's companion made a successful dash for liberty, but the patrolman knotted a fist in Baxter's belt as he started to follow, according to police reports.

Another burglary was reported at the bottling works of Bradley and Woerts, at 229 Simpson street, where thieves made away with a quantity of soft drinks and foodstuffs, police were told.

The home of M. Lefkoff, at 485 Wabash avenue, was burglarized Sunday night and $110 in money taken. Detectives J. J. Chester and D. E. Blair were told. The thieves gained entrance by forcing a rear window and located the money in a desk drawer in Lefkoff's bedroom, he told detectives.

CANADIANS LEAVE ON GOOD-WILL TOUR OF DIXIE STATES

Cincinnati, March 27.—(AP)—Headed by the father of good highways in Canada, Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the Canadian Automobile association, a representative party of Canadians left here this morning for Knoxville, Tenn., their next stop in a good-will tour of southern states.

With the party are W. J. Wilson, mayor of Gannanoque, Ontario; Leon Frazier, representing the Ontario government; and J. B. Frazier, representing the department of lands and forests. The trip will end in Palm Beach, Fla.

The tour is for the purpose of acquainting the southern states with the natural advantages and resources of the Canadian territory, and for the purpose of extending an invitation to the Canadian National exhibition to be held this fall, Dr. Doolittle said.

KIDNAPED CHILD FOUND ON PORCH

He in his hand. "Tell him to give it to Frank. He thinks that is my name," the anonymous writer demanded. "The baby is well and singing and laughing and dancing. After the money is delivered your baby will be left in the home of a friend."

It was already 8 o'clock, but of the boy's whereabouts no word. Fred Frazier rushed to McCallie and Central avenues, after telephoning his brother, Jim, at home, to rush down with the money.

A slim, half-grown negro was walking nervously, furtively, in the neighborhood of the designated corner when Frazier arrived.

"Are you looking for me?" he asked the boy.

"Yes," the negro replied, his voice slightly muffled by a handkerchief, worn masked-fashion over the lower part of his face.

"Where's your broom handle?" asked Frazier.

The boy reached behind a fence and produced one.

"I didn't get the message until 8 o'clock," Frazier told the boy of the kidnapers. "I have sent for the money, though, and will have it here in 20 minutes."

The negro agreed. Thirty minutes later, Fred Frazier had placed in the hands of the negro youth a bundle containing $3,333 in cash and the letters Mrs. Frazier had received from the abductors of her child. The letter had been demanded in the note, along with the money. Then, Fred Frazier went home to await Mrs. Frazier, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbreath and other members of the family, the message from the kidnapers which would tell them where to find Virginia Jo.

HOME BEAUTIFUL TO OPEN SUNDAY

living room and can be entered through the living room and sun room. The breakfast room with built-in cabinet is between the dining room and kitchen.

The stairway to the second floor rises from the front hall. There are four bedrooms, two at the front and two at the back, and these have connecting baths.

A large double garage, finished like the house, is at the back of the house, and in this garage the servants' quarters have been built with two large rooms and bath.

The house has been newly papered from wall paper selected from the Capital Wall Paper company, that the proper background would be provided for the hangings and furnishings. The linens will be loaned by J. B. Fallaize company. A Frigidaire will be installed by Delco Products company and the heat will be supplied by the installation of a Quiet May oil burner.

The draperies in the living room will be made of copper-color figured damask. They will hang from hand-painted cornice, floor length. Glazed chintz in the same colorings as the living room will be used in the dining room. The sun parlor will have heavy silk gauze.

The master bedroom will have draperies of rose-colored silk; the guest room draperies will be made of jade green color tiffeta silk with rose color stripes.

One room is planned as a boy's room and will have green checked gingham for overdraperies, and another room, which will be furnished as a little girl's room, will have hangings of yellow silk gauze ruffled with green silk gauze.

The glass curtains over the entire net will be made of imported net.

Persian Oriental rugs will be used over the entire first floor, and plain rugs in the bed rooms. Furniture appropriate to each room has been selected and when the house is completed it will be an ideal of domestic comfort and good taste.

WARRING CHINESE TONGS SIGN PACT

Chicago, March 27.—(AP)—Warring Chinese tongs announced today they had signed a treaty of peace after a 24-hour armistice, but less than two hours later two alleged tong members were arrested when the police found a loaded revolver in their taxi.

At the same time, two others, Wong Low Woo, graduate of a Chicago law college, and Moy Got, who were held after the recent outbreak here in which three were slain and one wounded, were identified as the slayers of Moy Sing, one of the victims who was shot to death in his laundry.

Moy Woo, wounded in the affray under the identification.

Charges against the alleged slayers will not be filed until after an inquiry tomorrow. The two other alleged tong men arrested today are held for an inquiry.

The police remained on their guard despite the announcement of the peace treaty.

VICTIM OF BEAR MAY LOSE EYES

San Francisco, March 27.—(AP)—Percy Hays, 17, of Stockton, Calif., probably will lose the sight of both eyes as a result of being clawed by a bear in Golden Gate park here today.

Hays, with three other youths, came to San Francisco on a week-end trip, and visited the bear pits at Golden Gate park. While feeding sugar cubes to the animals, one of the cubs fell between the cage and guard rails outside. Disregarding warning signs, young Hays climbed over the rails to retrieve the sugar.

One of the bears reached through the bars, encircled Hays with one paw, holding him against the bars, and with the other forepaw clawed the boy's face, shoulders and arms.

Hays' companions finally secured release of the screaming youth by hitting the bear with sticks and stones. Hays was rushed to the Emergency hospital where it was found one eye had been torn out and the other badly cut. His face, shoulders and arms were cruelly lacerated.

INSIDE BANK LOOTING.

In passing sentence upon the four codefendant officials of the Bankers Trust company, who had been convicted in the federal district court, Judge S. H. Sibley struck vigorously at one of the greatest evils in this state, and sounded in effect a challenge to the legislature to revise the banking laws of Georgia so that depositors may henceforth be properly protected.

He said in reviewing the present "unsavory features of banking methods":

"An unsavory feature of banking methods as pursued in some quarters, and one that contributes largely to the collapse of most banks that close their doors, is the practice of allowing bank officials to borrow from their own bank to finance their own private enterprises or business ventures in which they are interested. The first thing you know they have overstepped the law and their bank is wrecked. If I had my way about it, no director or officer would be allowed to have even a checking account in his own bank. That would eliminate the possibility of such log-rolling schemes as these infernal loans often develop."

A sounder statement of facts as to a situation that is not only unsavory but vicious, has never been made from any bench.

It is a notorious fact that 90 per cent of the small bank failures, through which innocent depositors have suffered, have been caused by wreckage from within.

It has been a wild scramble in Georgia for years to establish entirely too many rural banks, with small capitalizations, and in too many instances with the purpose of giving groups of officials and directors opportunities for financing their private interests at the expense of depositors who are drawn into their nets.

If their businesses failed the banks failed, and in turn those who trusted their funds with them suffer. Sometimes there is dishonesty. Sometimes there is not. But the depositor pays in any event.

Judge Sibley says that if he had his way—and it would be a good thing for Georgia if he did—bank officials charged with the conservation of trust funds ought not to even have checking accounts in the banks they managed. Most assuredly they should be restricted by law from borrowing, at any time, directly or indirectly, one penny from institutions under their control.

Too many small banks, in lieu of one or two large, sound and properly safeguarded banks, do more harm than good to communities of only a few thousand people.

The depositors pay the expense of bank administration and in Georgia they have paid very dearly in scores of cases.

Communities with population of a few thousand frequently have four banks, all operating at heavy overhead expenses, that could be three-fourths eliminated through a substantial merger.

Any small community can get better banking service through one big, resourceful bank than through several small ones that are operated too often for the private benefit of the respective, and frequently factional, groups responsible for the management.

The most important and outstanding matter before the general assembly in July is a strengthening revision of the banking laws by which inside looting may be stopped and depositors fully protected.

The first step that should be taken in this direction is that so forcibly pointed out by Judge Sibley—making it a crime for any bank officer to borrow from his own bank.

Several hundred shoemakers of Brockton, Mass., were about to leave that city for Miami, lured there by false promises, when a civic society checked the movement by proving that Miami had no shoe factory. The propaganda that excited the shoe workers came from a real estate concern which felt that they would become permanent citizens as they stuck to the last.

PLANTING SEASON HERE.

Discussing the campaign for diversified farming in Georgia, The Manufacturers Record says:

"In this respect Georgia has set the pace for every other state in the south. All of these states are constantly discussing diversified farming and pressing the matter upon the attention of such farmers as had been giving all their attention to cotton, but Georgia has led the way with an entire week devoted to a discussion of the subject, with the governor of the state at the head of the campaign."

It is true that Georgia has "set the pace," provided the farmers and the business men, including bankers, in every community will now cooperate and put into actual effect the multitude of good gospel that has been and is being broadcast.

Talking and "doing" are different. The time has now come for a less talk and more action.

The planting season is here and the economic welfare of Georgia, not only for 1927, but for years to come, will be determined within the next few weeks.

If Georgia farmers remain determined to send $165,000,000 out of the state another year for food and feed crops that they can grow as well and as economically as can be grown in any other state, then agricultural distress will continue. It is a pencil and pad matter. There can be no farm readjustment worth a candle that is not based first upon the farmer keeping his own barns and smokehouses full. So long as cotton is produced at a price in excess of the spot market it can bring only the sheriff to the farmer's gate unless it is grown as a clear, clean surplus. In that event the price can go down or up, and the farmer can sell when and only when he pleases.

In readjusting farm conditions, to which the best thought of the state has been given in the past few weeks, there must be thorough community cooperation. The banker who has heretofore extended credit only on a basis of cotton production must extend credit on a basis of "living at home." That is a far sounder basis anyway. The banker and the merchant and the professional man—everybody—must cooperate with the farmer in finding and extending markets. And then there must be a greater degree of standardization.

Reports are coming in from all sections that corn acreage will probably not be any heavier, if as heavy, as in 1926. This will be a serious mistake. Not only should corn acreage be increased, but acreage production should be increased.

Again, it should be emphasized that the only way to reduce the cost of cotton production is to increase the average yield. This can be done easily by intensive cultivation—by better farming.

HIGH COSTS IN PARIS.

While tourists returning from continental Europe are warning those who are thinking of going to Paris this spring and summer as to the abnormally high living prices now prevailing in that city, the cables bring the news that a nationwide coal strike has been called for France April 1.

The miners refuse to accept a reduction in wages while living prices mount, thus expressed in a bit of spring poetry "not a centime off pay unless living moves that way."

If such a strike becomes effective the situation as to unemployment, already acute in Paris, may become serious.

In the meantime thousands of Americans, including service men and their families, are preparing to move upon France this summer under the excursion auspices of the American legation.

Any effort through negotiations to guard against extortion will of course be hampered by the fact that even at the recently increased rates in Paris the "cost of living" there is less than in New York.

So long as an American traveler is required to pay less in Paris than a French traveler has to pay in New York, there is little or nothing about which we have a right to complain. Those who don't like it can stay at home.

It has come to a terrible pass that Lila Grey Chaplin, who has been starving, and her infant child-aid suffering for necessary clothing, with less than $100 a week which Charles's attorneys allowed her, has been compelled to go back to the screen at a paltry $2,500 a week.

The latest earthquake shook up towns along the Mediterranean coast sufficient "to displace furniture." That's about as much a disturbance as caused by the annual spring house cleaning program in Georgia.

The war in China has taught us that the Chinese are not acquainted with our chop-suey.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

New York, March 27.—After trudging along together for 16 years in mutual forbearance, the duchess and her favorite evening newspaper have parted company.

It was the duchess who deserted. She says there are too many ads in it.

Two blocks west of Broadway on 42d street, over near Ninth avenue, life runs along in simpler channels than on Mazda lane.

There are funny little auction rooms dotting the neighborhood where eager-eyed gentlemen with aduncous beaks, in their shirt sleeves, bite on cheap cigars and sell "genooine Japanese vases," with a flowery vocabulary that far outstrip the multi-colored villainies of the blooms on the jars they auction.

Clustered around the knees of one of these gifted salesmen in a crowded, smoky shop one day last week were scores of festive truckmen, off duty, and one or two of their discriminating brethren who earn a living as the spring steals over the big town, selling consumptive geraniums to tenement dwellers, at the top of their lungs.

Speaking of these boys, it's an inspiring sight to encounter one in his derby hat on the back of his head, clad in a blue flannel shirt, open at the neck, and a broad, braided, hairiest—his arms full of tender, young potted plants, calling his wares in a voice that makes the siren on the Leitchman sound like a school girl's sigh.

There are quaint tobaccoists' shops there where men manufacture briar pipes in the windows.

For a dollar and a half in these shops you may purchase as good a pipe as the city affords. Several blocks further west and a block or two north, on Fifth avenue, you may find the same sort of briar—not as good a pipe, in fact, because the Fifth avenue variety isn't wrought with the same loving care that distinguishes the output of the shops in the lower levels. And the pipe maker takes your money because he needs it and he needs it badly.

While on Fifth avenue, the delectable transaction of acquiring a pipe—stripped of every vestige of individuality by the indifference of the salesman in a linen duster who razes you with a distinct cockney accent.

In the neighborhood I speak of there's an old chap who rents a room for a hole in the wall where he tinkers all day at the most gloriously tinkered work-bench you ever encountered.

There's a crazy swinging sign beyond his shop door acquainting the passerby with the fact that therein he may have "clocks and music boxes repaired, equal to new."

He is still living back in the days of President McKinley. There are no automobiles and victrolas in the patch of memory he inhabits.

Hard by the human tide rushes and roars through Paramount canyon; but the old man sits in his funny old shop serene as a "clock ticking through a thunderstorm."

Time and Tide

BY JOHN HUBERT GREUSEL

ONE POUND EQUALS SIXTEEN OUNCES.

We have not yet come to the place in our civilization where we can dispense with the soldier. A man who will not fight for his home soon will have no home to fight for; a man who will not fight for his nation soon will have no nation to defend.

In the meantime, our race must suffer.

No man can shorten the time or hasten the day, unless all men are willing to shorten the time and hasten the day.

The world war is now long ended, time is passing, the years are rolling on. It is now clear, in all common sense, that all by herself France could not keep the peace; nor could England all by herself keep the peace; nor could Italy all by herself keep the peace and finally neither could the Kaiser all by himself keep the peace.

It is all right enough to talk about ideals, but unless you have enough force to make your ideals practical, what good are they? You might as well go over in the corner and whisper to yourself, "I must keep the peace," then have a thief enter your house that night and blow your brains out.

What's wrong with all that? You believe, of course, that you and you act on it of course you do. But if you see Americans who make excessive brags about their shrewdness did not know anything like that before we got up the prodigious sum of $200,000,000, and enlisted millions of men to cross the sea.

This keeping the peace has two phases first it is a concerted movement, next it is strictly a personal matter. It does you no good to say, "I am my brother's keeper," or, "I am my nation's keeper," unless on top of it you get away from mere words.

If you wish a profit you have it right under your nose. Forget the world war and look on the small man, a nasty little graft of your own. Who is he? He is the "grease," "damning the milk trust," and to take the ground that "a municipal milk depot" will solve the problem.

My Mockingbird Returns

Dear mockingbird, I welcome thee! Grand master of bird melody. All winter long I yearned to hear Thy songs, that thrill the heart and sing out thy songs the world admires. Thou leader of all summer choirs.

I love the lark, "blithe spirit" he. When from his meadow nest I see Him heavenly fly, with circling wings. And near the dawn-song which he sings.

To wake the bird world everywhere, Till songs without words fill the air. Best of all singers of the wing, Thou, O sweet mockingbird, dost sing. In moonlight night on sun-bright day Thy matchless song and mimicry! It saddens me when far you roam! I bless thy coming—welcome home!

Just in Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.

Hats off again to Bobby Jones! His victory in the southern open was foreseen before the finals.

Undoubtedly he is the world's greatest golfer of today, and of all time.

The point I want to make, however, is that Bobby Jones is just as fine a young gentleman as he is a clean young sportsman.

Success, plaudits, fame, have not "turned his head," nor made a cad of him.

He has not attempted to vulgarly capitalize his honors.

He is not seeking the vaudeville stage. Nor even a commercial "golf tour."

There are certain sports that should never be reduced to commercialism. Golf is one of them. Football is another.

Bobby Jones cannot be other than the man he is coming from the sturdy Cherokee county stock that he does.

How incongruous! Talk about "cleaning up the stage" in one breath and then contracting in another to star "Peaches" Browning in vaudeville at $3,500 a week salary! Not that the young woman will "show" herself perhaps any way but in conventional costume, or repeat any of her salacious testimony in the recent notorious court action!

But the psychology of the thing! And psychology is the most powerful of all influences. It is also the most destructive of all weapons. Certainly she has no histrionic talent.

Then what else could induce public appearances at "so much per" except the box-office capitalization of morbid, senseless human curiosity?

The worst of it is, thousands of young, impressionable girls will stampede the theaters to "see" and glorify and worship at her shrine.

Why? Because she will have thus financially profited, beyond the hope or dream of the average person, by exploited shame.

What a travesty upon the promotion of standard ideals!

William E. Thomas, writing from Hotel Regal, Murphy, N. C., inquires as to the beginning of the cultivation of cotton, where and by whom, and as to the beginning of the textile industry.

It was cultivated in both India and Peru on an extensive scale as early as 800 B. C. Of this there are undisputed records. It therefore was undoubtedly cultivated as early as 1000 B. C., and possibly earlier than that.

Spinning and weaving on a commercial scale was extensively carried on in a crude way of course—in Asia 200 B. C. to 200 A. D. Nets for the hair, and also hats, were among the widely distributed products. There were no "bobs" in those days.

Early in the 16th century England was manufacturing cotton fabrics. There was extensive production in Europe at that time. Southern Germany was the big producing section.

In America the "home loom" was in the 17th century, as familiar in a farm home as the "spinning wheel," but when Eli Whitney, of Georgia, invented the cotton gin the textile industry, confined to New England, took a tremendous spurt. This was in 1793.

In the 18th century mills, with printing and dyeing machines, began to rapidly accumulate in the Rhode Island-Massachusetts territory.

It will be pleasing to his multitude of friends that Commissioner Brown has appointed Martin F. Amoruso the State Agricultural Economist, to succeed the late Martin Calvin, who gave many years of a long and useful life to that work, and who did a splendid service.

Mr. Amoruso is one of the best posted men on cotton, from statistical and economical standpoints, of any man in the south. He is studiously posted on all farm matters.

Few men of the south since the civil war made a greater impression upon the life of their respective states than did Colonel Martin Calvin in Georgia. Although God had spared him long and his accomplishments were many, his passing was a great shock to thousands of friends and admirers.

He was tendered a diplomatic post of distinction by President Cleveland but declined it on account of the ill health at the time of Mr. Calvin. It was the ambition of his life, but the loving consideration for his wife outweighed it.

As legislator, educator, economist, thinker, he was always a constructive leader.

He was always an advocate of the legal and franchise rights of women.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY

Do you care to comment on the statement made at Williamson by a retired admiral of the United States navy that the Washington disarmament conference was a piece of British strategy and was designed to check America's naval supremacy over Great Britain?

I have not seen an authentic copy of the speech from which the statement is taken, but if it is substantially correct it need not disturb lovers of concord between the two nations involved, and those include all lovers of civilization.

I prefer to accept the interpretation of the motives and aims of the conference made by ex-Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes. He was its moving spirit and the reputed author of the proposals which led to its desirable issue. He was not disposed, as I know, to sit in judgment on Great Britain or any other nation represented in the conference or to attribute secretly selfish designs to them.

Gallant sea dogs like the admiral in question cannot be expected to see splendid warships scrapped without a qualm. A sailor is so absorbed in his ship that for him destruction seems a suicidal act. But he allows his feelings to warp his judgment when he plays the part which Anglophobists have played in the past. He is a man who is not retired admiral at that, who insists that the conference enabled our government to get rid of a building program which promised to be as useless as it would have been expensive. If any nation surrendered actual naval supremacy at Washington it was Great Britain, not the United States.

Have we any knowledge whatsoever of a future life? Is not the belief in immortality entirely

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

WHIPPING CURES THE SMOKING HABIT.

One of the saddest mistakes misguided parents make in the training of a child is this: The child bumps his head upon the wall or a chair or table and sets up a lusty howl, which is perfectly natural and proper and good for what ails the child. But the parent, instead of patting the head casually and saying, "There, there, you must be more careful next time," and letting it go at that, manifests great anxiety over the injury, sobbers in an excess of sympathy over the child, and worst of all, enters a pantomime of whipping the naughty table, the wicked wall or the bad chair for hurting little twined limbs.

If a child is ever to grow up and take care of himself he has got to learn sooner or later that walls, chairs, tables, stoves and similar impediments are necessary features of the environment and one must adapt one's movements to the arrangement of things as they are. It is utterly futile to cultivate a vain wish or fancy that walls, chairs, tables and stoves might be magically loved out of one's way. This is precisely what the misguided parent does when he or she pretends to punish the naughty object which the child has bumped into.

It has always fought "mud," not only in streets and highways, but in politics, public affairs, public opinion—in everything where "mud" retards progress, and the economic, social, and moral welfare of all the people.

And it always will!

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is just as essential to this city as is one of its utilities.

It has a specific service to perform—a big service.

It is measuring up to the task.

It is officered and directed by good and progressive citizens who give unselfishly of their time and talents and resources to public progress.

But—and listen—

It had better steer clear of politics—city or state.

I don't know of anything that can destroy its usefulness so much or so quickly, and thereby hurt Atlanta, than to get mixed up with a mess of political issues and group factions.

It is the clearing-house for commercial, industrial, financial and civic activities.

It is the central government, so to speak, with their various sub and allied organizations bearing relationships of states to a union.

Promoting industry, advertising Atlanta, attracting new people, new resources—all of these things do not detract from its usefulness in a local character fight, or a state tax fight, or anything in which politics is now or to be a controlling factor. I am talking about the organization, not individuals.

Another frank thought—

The leaders among the opponents of the proposed new charter today are hoping and praying the chamber of commerce may get entangled in that campaign.

Surely, a local majority fight of only a few years ago has not been so quickly forgotten.

Much is being said, and planned for, the celebration in May of the closing-in on the last link of paving between Marietta and Perry, via Atlanta and Macon—a distance of about 150 miles.

Fine business!

It is something to be proud of and something to celebrate—this completion of the longest stretch of paving in the state, representing more than one-fourth of all the hard surfaced paving in the state.

The state highway department was organized 12 years ago and has spent over $50,000,000.

It is time to be "celebrating" something!

But, please don't say—as has my friend Isidor Gelders—that this stretch of paving has been built on the "pay-as-you-go" plan.

Fulton is the longest link, built by herself without one penny of federal or state aid.

Bibb is the next longest, built by herself with a bill against the state highway board for the state's part which she can't collect.

Spalding is next, with an ad valorem bond debt hanging over the county with which she did the job.

Other counties along this first 150-mile stretch, which we are to "celebrate," after 12 years, also bonded themselves, ad valorem, to do the job.

Is that pay-as-you-go? These high-interest-rate local bonds, guaranteed by property values, to build the state's highways? Is it?

I heartily commend the enterprise that has made this link possible, after so long a time, but let's don't mislead anybody.

County bonds for state highways is a thundering long way from "pay-as-you-go."

That's sufficient for the day!

a matter of faith and hope which cannot be proved? In the last analysis must we not admit that we know absolutely nothing about it?

And is it not true that belief is not knowledge?

No reliable thinker claims that we have knowledge of a future life in the same sense and meaning that we have knowledge of this life. Belief in a future life is what you say it is, "a matter of faith and hope."

But you are wrong in your inference that such faith and hope are admissions of absolute ignorance. Neither of these virtues could possibly arise from such negative a condition. True belief is not knowledge and hope is not based on definite information. Yet if the credibility of everything we do not know or about which we have no clear information is to be destroyed little enough would be left of life's certainties. In all probability you yourself would have no shuffler in the mortal coil.

Although belief is not knowledge, it may nevertheless be rational belief and as such a basis for wise action. It is rational when it accords with the evidence that sustain it, is justified by the effects that follow it, and explanatory of undeniable realities.

True belief is not knowledge and hope is not based on definite information. Yet if the credibility of everything we do not know or about which we have no clear information is to be destroyed little enough would be left of life's certainties. In all probability you yourself would have no shuffler in the mortal coil.

Does normal human nature, which is both rational and ethical, support the doctrine of life beyond the grave? Does acceptance of the doctrine and trust in its teaching invest present life with a more profound significance? I contend that these are the results of the belief you suspect and stamp it as both intelligible and rational.

Buenos Ayres, S. A.

Is not Greece the most troublesome of all the southeastern provinces? Think of her constant revolutions and feeble-minded people and tell me in what she can be sustained?

If politics were as important as the majority believe it to be there would not be much hope for Greece. But no man lives by politics alone. Through some have died through an overdose of its mercenary changes, and Greece has had her full share of these. Yet during her upheavals since the world war and notwithstanding her disastrous defeat by the Turks, she has settled half a million Asiatic peasants in her blood in Macedonia, where they have doubled and in some instances trebled the productivity of the soil. There have been similar settlements upon a smaller scale in Asia Minor, the Peloponnese and Epirus.

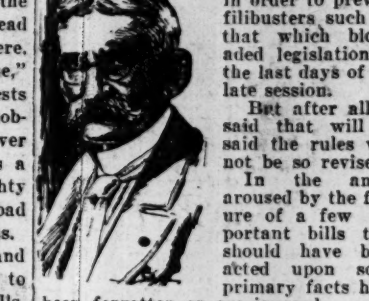

Aided by American and foreign philanthropic societies, this line of settlement has also been provided for scores of thousands of refugees in Athens and other central cities. Homeless peoples, hardy and industrious, trained in agriculture and eager to get from under the domination of the Turk, are now located in their ancestral country. It has been an extraordinary migration which would have been labeled as a divine event had it occurred in Biblical times.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Why We Have a Senate and Why the Fathers Provided For Filibusters.

There may be considerable talk in the senate, when congress convenes next December, over the proposed revision of the rules of the senate, in which to prevent the filibuster, such as that which blocked legislation in the last days of the last session.

But after all that is said the rules will not be so revised.

In the anger aroused by the failure of a few important bills that should have been acted upon some primary facts have been forgotten or are ignored.

The chief fact is that the privilege to present specific legislation is an incorporated hereditary of our American system of government. It is one of those "checks" upon partisan, factional, ill-advised, or unconstitutional legislation that are boasted factors of our legislative mechanism.

Some great occasions and experiences in congressional history have demonstrated that a filibuster is a popular body, representative of all the people, to stop bills that were grossly partisan and oppressively framed, or that were ill-considered attempts to answer public clamor arising from temporary causes.

Why We Have the Senate.

The question is often asked by men who have not read the history of the formation of our government:

"Why do we have a senate? Would we not get along easier and better to have only the house of representatives, a popular body, representative of and responsive to the popular majority?"

Well, that question came up in the constitutional convention and the wise and venerable Benjamin Franklin favored the Pennsylvania system of that era, the unicameral, or one body, legislature. By that system whatever the executive body enacted became law until voided, if ever, by the supreme court.

"Why," asked Franklin, somewhat querulously, "hitch a horse to the cart to draw it forward and then another to rear it back?"

But the convention, after full deliberation, fixed upon the bicameral system of a house and senate acting concurrently to effect legislation, and a qualified veto power in the executive to arrest their concurrent action unless two-thirds of each house should reject the limited measure.

That system has prevailed to the present day and features not only the national but all the state governments. So that it may be claimed to be an inalienable fixture.

How Washington Explained It.

Very soon after the republic was declared a distinguished foreign envoy to our government asked President Washington, at one of his levees, why we have the senate in our legislature?

They were at the moment drinking tea together. Washington took up his cup of hot tea and poured a portion of his sauce and then asked the French envoy:

"Why do I do that?"

"Ah," was the answer, "to cool the tea."

"Just so," said Washington, "we have a senate to cool the too hasty and hot

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

The pointer for today is:

With the Contract No-Trump and a small card led, Dummy holding Queen and one small of the suit led should play the Queen unless contents of Closed Hand makes that play inadvisable.

When determining the sound play from an honor and one small in Dummy, it is well to bear in mind that against a No-Trump, the original lead may be a very different card from the one which would have been led against a trump contract, established.

The object of the leader against a No-Trump is to establish a long suit. Again a trump contract, established, is a suit of little importance because, when established, it will be trumped; and therefore, against a suit contract, high cards are not held back to establish suits, but led quickly for fear they will be lost.

With Ace-King and two, three or four small cards, the lead against a trump contract is the King; but against a No-Trump it is the fourth best. So at No-Trump, with Queen-x in Dummy and without a card as high as a Jack in the Closed Hand, the Queen should be played, as it is the only chance for a trick in the suit.

The contents of the Closed Hand, however, may alter the situation and the Queen in Dummy should not be played invariably. Suppose a small card led from some such combination as Ace-10-x-x; that Dummy hold Queen and one small, and Closed Hand Jack and two small. If Dummy play small, it is obvious that the Declarer must make one trick in the suit; but if Dummy play the Queen, Third Hand will win with the King, return the suit through Closed Hand's Jack-x, and the original leader with Ace-Ten and two others would capture the Jack and run five tricks in the suit. With Queen-x of the adverse suit in Dummy opposite Jack-x in Closed Hand, only one trick can be won; and that trick should be insured by playing small on the first round.

As an illustration, look at the following hand:

North	South
S. 9-6-4-2	S. 1-7-5-3
H. 8-5-3	H. K-Q-7-2
D. K-J-6-2	D. 9-5
C. Q-8	C. K-7-5
West	East
S. K-10	S. 1-7-5-3
H. 10-4-4	H. K-Q-7-2
D. Q-10-8	D. 9-5
C. A-10-6-4-2	C. K-7-5

With South playing a No-Trump, the Four of Clubs would be led. Note the difference between the play of the Queen and of the small Club from Dummy on the first trick, and also determine, with the small Club played, what developments would follow. Details tomorrow.

DONALDSON CASE SUSPECT CAUGHT

position as to permit the shooting behind his back.

Eight Implicated.

In the confession disclosed on March 7, Fitchett declared that it was he who fired the shot that killed Donaldson and for that crime he had received $400.

Fitchett, who was being held in Chattanooga, Tenn., on a bad check charge, and is still in jail there, stated in his confession that those involved in the plot to kill Donaldson were R. B. Lovett, Jack Lance, Ed Lee, Whitey Jones, Phil King, Ike Sneed, Abie Nissenbaum, alias "Sparkplug," and a man named "Sparky."

According to Fitchett's confession, the murder was planned in the McKenzie building with McBryant, Lovett, Lance and himself present. Full details of the plot were rehearsed, Fitchett said, and the date was decided upon. He said a number of well-known gamblers left Atlanta before the murder to establish alibis.

Lovett in Death Room.

"Jack Lance had been delegated to decoy Bert Donaldson, the confession read, to the place in the Georgian Terrace hotel which was a room upstairs and this room had been rented."

Charged "Framing."

Fitchett in his confession, which caused a sensation when it was revealed by The Constitution, accused the other conspirators of having "framed" him into the actual killing by a "drawing straws" game. He claimed also that he was drunk at the time. The reason for his confession, he said, was that his conscience troubled him so that he could not sleep.

Donaldson's murder was one of the most mysterious ever perpetrated here. He had served time in the Atlanta penitentiary for robbery and after release had "reformed" and become affiliated with the office of Solicitor General Boykin as special investigator.

At the time of the murder, which occurred on the night of July 28, 1926, Lovett and Fitchett went to Cincinnati, the statement asserts.

Fatal Phone Call.

On the night of the killing, Donaldson received a telephone call at his home. He left without advising his wife of his destination. After entering the Georgian Terrace, he was never again seen alive. The actual shooting took place at about 9:30 on the night of July 28. The body, however, was not found until the following afternoon. It was said that in the interval, some 30 well-known Atlanta gamblers registered at the Patton hotel in Chattanooga.

Detectives on the case abandoned the theory of robbery when it was found that Donaldson had $700 in a wallet on his person. The entire city was combed for traces of Chicago gunmen who were thought to have been imported for the job. The register at the fashionable hotel gave several clues to investigators although none resulted in bringing about positive evidence.

Donaldson was known to have incurred the enmity of Atlanta's underworld by bringing to justice many criminals. He was responsible for running down members of the notorious Floyd Woodward bunco gang. Fitchett, who made the confession, is 31 and married. He was elected to the Atlanta police department in November, 1919, and resigned on January 19, 1920. His resignation followed a "slender" with a girl whom he claimed to have rescued from a "kidnap" the day previous to the marriage. His home originally was in Lumber City, Ga.

Pressman tells how newspaper workers keep fit

The pressmen working in a newspaper office at Dorchester, Mass., used to have great trouble with rheumatic stiffness owing to frequent sudden draughts of cold air when the doors were opened to take in rolls of paper.

One of their number began using Sloan's Liniment and now they all ship in to keep Sloan's always on hand for the entire shop.

"After my day's work I rub a little Sloan's Liniment on my back and legs. It never fails."

Sloan's gives real help because it doesn't just deaden the pain. It gets at the cause.

Apply gently, without rubbing. Right away you feel the comfortable, glowing warmth as the new blood is brought to the sore spots, and soon the aching stops. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

HEADS CAMPAIGN

PRESTON S. ARKWRIGHT, Chairman of the local advisory board of the Salvation Army.

SALVATION ARMY ASKS FOR $50,000

A. McCord, J. H. Ewing and Lowry Arnold.

In announcing the campaign Chairman Arkwright says the effort has been made to secure the endorsement of the officers and executive committee of the Atlanta Community Chest and of the endorsement committee of the chamber of commerce.

"The sum of $50,000 is a small amount for the people of Atlanta to raise for such an outstanding organization as the Salvation Army," said Chairman Arkwright last night.

"Yet this is the minimum absolutely required to complete the financing and establishment of southern territorial headquarters in Atlanta."

"Up to the first of this year the charitable and religious activities of the Salvation Army in the south were supervised from New York, the eastern and central territorial headquarters from Chicago, and the only other territorial headquarters in the United States were located at San Francisco."

"With the establishment of the new territory, comprising 16 states south of the Mason and Dixon line and extending southwest as far as Oklahoma and Arkansas, there was keen competition among the larger cities of the territory which desired headquarters."

"Through the chamber of commerce and other civic organizations Atlanta went after this honor with its usual zest. The result was that we secured the headquarters in spite of alluring offers and cordial invitations extended by Baltimore, Memphis, Birmingham, New Orleans and Dallas."

"The members of the advisory board feel sure that Atlanta will not do less than any of the other cities whose invitations were declined in favor of this city, and hence we feel very certain that the people of Atlanta will stand behind the immediate financial needs of this organization."

"The southern territory includes the states of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas."

"The territory is divided into 11 divisions and there are 221 corps and 49 special service institutions and the territory has nearly 700 commissioned officers."

"Through the official territorial publication, 'The War Cry,' issued from this city, Atlanta has already received an exceptional amount of advertising. The maiden issue of the southern territorial 'War Cry' appeared last week with a circulation of 250,000 copies which have been sent to every civilized country in the world."

"Atlanta has been placed shoulder to shoulder with New York, Chicago and San Francisco in the administration of the work of the Salvation Army in this country and I feel sure the people of this city will show their appreciation by making this campaign the success it deserves at the hands of Atlanta."

The members of the Salvation Army advisory board include Preston S. Arkwright, chairman; Judge Livingston F. McClelland, Joseph C. McCord, W. T. Perkinson, Charles N. Walker, J. H. Ewing, John S. Cohen, Willis S. Bouton, Howell E. Emmett, L. Quinn, Tom C. Law, James B. Nevin, Lowry Arnold, W. R. C. Smith, Mel Wilkinson, J. S. Kennedy, Mayor J. N. Ragsdale, and Mrs. S. Lumpkin and Mrs. T. T. Stevens.

The members of the democratic party who uphold the laws, says the call, "will not endorse the nomination of any candidate for any office who is not loyal to the constitution of the United States."

"Tendencies in the democratic party at present point to a repetition in 1928 of the tragedy that was enacted in 1924. Women democrats in every section of the United States are anxious for party success, realize that steps must be taken to check a concerted effort that is being made for the nomination of a nullificationist for the presidency."

Among the women signing the call is Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, of this city, whose husband was one of the McAdoo managers in 1924. Other women in the list include Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming; Mrs. Ruth Owen, of Miami, Fla., daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, and Mrs. William A. H. McCulloch, of Chicago.

U. D. C. Meeting.

Mrs. Stafford Seidel, president of the board of the Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Sunday issued an announcement for a called meeting to be held Tuesday, 10:30 o'clock, at the chapter house, 156 Juniper street.

Slams Salaams and By Louise Dooky

THE feminists have a new alibi. But wait a minutes. That is the climax of my story, and any correspondence school of writing would tell me I must not start out with my climax. A hint won't hurt right at the start, though, that this story is going to get somewhat.

IT begins with a comment of Mrs. MacDowell's in her current lecture-recital tour in the south. "The American people are the most artistic people in the world," she says, and she explains that by artistic she means in talent and appreciation. "We are the most artistic people, but we are almost totally lacking in the sense of responsibility for art."

Expanding her statement: Millions of dollars, she remarks, we pour out for music—concerts and opera by the greatest artists and music organizations, and education.

The last item could be the most significant—the training of youth—but, with all the superb sum spent for lessons and scholarships, the potential results are to great extent nullified, because we have no follow-up system.

We spend all this money in the preparation of young people for a musical career, and then turn them loose to make the best of it. We throw them in the water to sink or swim. (Yet the best swimmers are frequently those who have had real labor to learn.)

The young musicians and singers have to face the first and hardest years without a helping hand held out to them, and many sink with the struggle. The education of the youth best equipped for successful expression through art is by no means necessarily the nature best fitted for coping with the practical business of every day living. The mediocre gift is much more liable to be combined with the commercial instinct. It thus wins out over the superior talent, and music is the loser.

A TELLING illustration of the failure of responsibility for art involved MacDowell herself. It happened perhaps 30 years ago, when America's most distinguished composer, in spite of the deadening routine of teaching—leading to the creative spirit—on which he had to spend the major part of his forces, had yet been able to produce already works which had revealed to the discerning that genius which has now long been universally recognized.

A rich man in Boston, which then, as now, prided itself on its superior musical understanding, approached Paderewski, and told him he was eager to devote a certain generous sum of money to the promotion of music. "How shall I use it?" he asked.

"Save MacDowell," was the prompt answer of the great Pole, who knew by bitter experience the crushing weight of worldly cares upon the creative spirit.

The rich man did not do it. Probably the idea was not showy enough to appeal to him.

THE conflict between desire to create and necessity to live broke the health of MacDowell long before his time. Nevertheless, such was his creative achievement that although he laid down his pen many years ago, this situation still holds: Ask any musician, American or foreign, what America has done for the highest realm of music—the creative realm—and the answer is as prompt and unflinching as the needle to the north in beginning with MacDowell.

What more he might have done—that is idle speculation. But all genius did not die with MacDowell. Nor did rich men's opportunity.

MRS. MacDowell has been too busy being a feminist to take any position as to feminism, radical or involuntary. By which latter expression I would designate those women who have grown prominent as a result of their own efforts in business or the professions, not through conscious advancement of the women's movement for itself, but through necessity of taking care of a family. Like the highest salaried woman in the country—the hundred thousand dollar a year executive recently feted by her organi-

Your Kidneys

Must Function Properly For You To Be Well

I ATE hours, rich foods and stimulating drinks are all hard on our kidneys. If their action becomes sluggish, they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes.

Such impurities may make one dull, tired and achy, with often a toxic backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common symptom of imperfect kidney function is scanty or burning excretions.

Thousands have learned the virtue of Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic in these conditions. 50,000 users have publicly recommended Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. T. W. Barker, Graduate Nurse, 302 W. Pecan St., Sherman, Texas, says: "Doan's Pills is the only proprietary medicine I have not recommended. I have not only used Doan's myself, with excellent results, but many times have recommended them and have been thanked for so doing."

Guy R. Sloan, 172 Maple St., Naugatuck, Conn., says: "My back ached and was lame and sore. My kidneys showed signs of disorder, as the secretions were thick and burned in passing. I was so miserable, I had to stop work. I improved soon after beginning to use Doan's Pills and soon I was again in good health."

CAPT. FONCK PLANS NEW OCEAN FLIGHT

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Captain Rene Fonck, a Czech flying ace, whose attempt to fly from New York to Paris last September ended in disaster, will arrive in the United States early next month to make another attempt, said L. A. Stoumoff, secretary-treasurer of the Sikorsky Manufacturing company, in an announcement of plans today.

Captain Fonck will assume personal supervision of construction of two planes at the College Point plant of the Sikorsky Manufacturing corporation. One plane is to be used in the flight and the other held as a spare. They are identical and are modeled after the ill-fated S-35 which was destroyed by fire with loss of two lives on Captain Fonck's first attempt. They too will bear the designation S-35.

Asheville, N. C., March 27.—(Special.)—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Loring Seely, of Asheville, N. C., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude, to John Dee Walden Eller, of Winston-Salem, N. C. The marriage is to take place on June 25.

Miss Seely, who is the elder of the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Seely, graduated last June from Smith college, after preparatory work at Spence school, Ogontz. She is a member of the Junior league and leader in Asheville's unmarried set.

Her childhood was spent in Atlanta, her parents' home for 10 years, and she has many Atlanta friends. She is a sister of Mrs. John M. Beards, of Ohio, now with her husband in Manila; John and Grove Seely, students at Yale, and Fred L. Jack Huggles, the general manager of the Reds, jugs his lineup so frequently that even the team makers are in despair, but there are good grounds for believing that with a good break in the Cincinnati Reds' luck, he will be juggled into the pennant-winning hole in 1927.

The Reds finished fourth in 1924, third in 1925 and second last season and are due this year.

Everything depends upon the outcome of a conference here Tuesday afternoon with President Garry Herrmann and Hughie Critz, the best fielding second baseman in the game, who is afflicted with a swelled head and an ambition to obtain a $20,000 salary for the season.

Will Reach Terms.

There is a difference of some $5,000 between what the Greenwood, Miss., boys are to be paid and what Herrmann wants to pay.

With Critz at second base, and the chances are that he will come to terms with the Chicago White Sox, the strongest club in the National League.

They have lost eight of their last nine games against American league clubs, and it is not surprising, therefore, the fact that Florida games mean less than nothing, qualifies them for a lot of victories after April 12.

On the mound, at short field and behind the bat than they were in 1926. They have lost Eddie Rousch from the outfield, and have lost the best pitcher, Ross. Brosler, Walker, Zitzmann and Ethan Allen, a youngster from the Kelly has shown by his work at second base that he is a poor substitute for Critz, so the latter holds the key to the situation.

Pinehi seems to have the call at third. He has played far better this spring than anyone anticipated, and will supplant Dressen, whose arm is not good.

Ford, on his Florida showing, deserves the call at shortstop, although Pittenger's work is a bit flashier.

Cincinnati has two of the best first basemen in the league, but it is hard for Kelly to keep Wally Pipp on the bench. But if Critz comes to terms, Hendricks will have such valuable help that it will be difficult to see how his club can be kept from the pennant this year.

Bulldogs Begin Long Baseball Tour Today

BY MARCUS BRYANT.

Athens, Ga., March 27.—Early tomorrow morning the Georgia Bulldog baseball team leaves on an eight-game road trip, meeting Clemson, Auburn, Alabama and Vanderbilt in two-game series. Eighteen players will be included in the Bulldog party, to be accompanied by Coach William P. White and Student-Manager Cornelius Vason.

SECOND ROUND OF PINEHURST

MEET TODAY

Pinehurst, N. C., March 27.—(AP)—Participants in the united north and south women's championship golf tournament rested in preparation for the first round today. The tournament is being played at the Pinehurst resort.

Clemson is played Monday and Tuesday. Wednesday and Thursday finds the Bulldogs in the back yard of the Auburn Plainsmen, with the week to be closed with games Friday and Saturday with Alabama at Tuscaloosa. Southern the Red and Black comes new to Nashville, meeting the Vanderbilt Commodores on Monday and Tuesday week. The squad returns to flight tomorrow. Some took to the course for a few practice holes, but generally today was a day of rest.

Tomorrow morning the eight survivors of the championship flight will tee off in the 18-hole rounds that will decide who will participate in the semi-finals to be played on Tuesday.

Amesbury, Mass., April 20. (AP)—April 8 and 9, 1934, and two games with the Mercer Bears.

Interesting Series.

Clemson was not played by the Bulldog diamonds last year and this series should prove interesting. Auburn was victor in two of three games last year, one game being rained out.

Yesterday's first and was marked by an upset in which Miss Louise Fordyce, playing through the champion, Miss Florence Brown, of New York, who played real championship golf. After playing the first round of the tournament, the following were the winners:

McWhorter, a fresh graduate, Captain "Skeet" Johnson is ending his career this season behind the bat and in Pat Keating the Bulldogs boast an able pitcher.

Tom Nash is the only infielder of last year to return. "Mickie" Frain, Chafin and Sherlock, all had to be replaced by freshmen. Second, third, and fourth base were short, and third, though Chafin is the only newcomer on

The championship match on Saturday afternoon at the county fair was won by the varsity. Estes and Johnson will get in the role as utility men, most of the time.

Arenwirth, Flowers and Shiver will probably be the choice of Coach White for the county team. They were in the outfield, though Stead's games. Jacobson came up from last year's freshman nine.

The Kentucky Wildcats are the next opponents of the Bulldogs in Athens.

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Several years ago some pedagogically inclined person with a fine faith in humanity attempted to teach us that two things equal to the same thing are equal to each other. Saturday at East Lake Johnny Farrell and John Golden, two Johnnies from the land of light wine and what have you, proved this assumption to our entire satisfaction—hence this story.

The story of how the two Johnnies came home with identical scores of 259 to tie for second place in the southern open has been told and written until it is as familiar around these parts as a slogan on a billboard but the story is not told.

Today at two by the clock a couple of New Jersey trap shooters will play off the tie at East Lake and settle a little matter of who takes $14,000 and who takes $1,750 back to New Jersey to invest in a new brewery or something.

Wins With Birdie.

After the round was completed and Johnny Farrell had made himself an undisturbed nest in the eyes of the Golden by coming in with a birdie on 17 and a par on 18 to leave the money, the two friendly enemies met on the clubhouse steps and went into conference with the officials of the club. The net result was a plan to settle the question of superiority in an 18-hole match at East Lake this afternoon.

Of course, the customers who have been doing marathon stunts for several days around Bobby's house club, are not disappointed in the outcome of that argument as they will be able to see the two top-notch professionals in this particular tournament do their divots all over again for a dozen and a half holes.

On the other page, the pair of Jacks are well satisfied, too, because they will be able to settle their differences and at the same time gather in a few more dollars. The club decided that the contestants should split the gate whatever its size and it should be no paltry sum. All customers will be admitted for the sum of one dollar.

WALTER HAGEN AND SARAZEN MEET SUNDAY

A return match between Walter Hagen, professional golf champion of America, and Gene Sarazen, former holder of that title and also former national open champion, was arranged here Sunday. It will be a 36-hole match and will be played next Sunday at the Greenbrier country club, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Hagen defeated Sarazen, 5 and 7, in a 72-hole match in Florida. That match, the first between them in almost four years, was the first time Hagen defeated Sarazen on American soil. Three previous Gene took Walter's measure, always on courses in the New York district.

Sarazen defeated Hagen, 3 and 2, at Westchester Country Club, New York, in 1922, when Gene was American champion and Walter held the British title. That match was for the unofficial championship of the world. In 1923 Sarazen won the P. G. A. final by defeating Hagen on the thirty-eighth green at Pelham. He also won, 2 up, in a special 36-hole match at Asbury Park, N. J.

HAGEN SEEKING NORTHERN JOB.

Chicago, March 27.—(P)—Walter Hagen, American professional golf champion and one of the best known pros in the world, is seeking a connection with some Chicago golf club, the Chicago Herald and Examiner said tonight. Hagen has decided to resign his connection with the Pasadena, Fla., golf club, with which he has been under contract for a long time, the paper said, as soon as he has completed negotiations with some northern club, preferably Chicago.

WALK MILLER WILL WITNESS FLOWERS BOUT

Despite the press of business affairs in New York, Walk Miller, manager of Tiger Flowers, will be here to direct his charge's fight against Soldier George Jones Tuesday night, so Matchmaker Burt Miller declared Sunday.

Manager Walk regards the scrap as important for more than one reason, the main one being the fact that it is Flowers' last scrap before he meets Mickey Walker in an effort to regain the middleweight championship that he lost in Chicago sometime ago.

The referee's action in awarding the fight to Walker on a decision was declared to be highly questionable and resulted in quite a verbal battle between Miller and Jack Kearns, manager of the new champion.

Walk will be on hand Tuesday night to see just how new Flowers is ready for the fight with Walker. If Flowers shows his old-time form against Jones—then he will not have to go through much training in preparation for the meeting with Walker.

To Go 15 Rounds. Due to the insistence of Soldier Jones, who figures that he has more stamina than his lighter opponent, the main event will call for 15 instead of 10 rounds as is usually the case in main events of fight shows here.

Jack Abel, popular ring official of Atlanta and former welterweight champion, has been retained to referee the main event and very likely will also handle the semi-main event.

That match limited to 8 rounds will find Henry Regan pitted against Joe Christie, who is being brought here from Philadelphia for the sole purpose of testing Regan's skill.

Regan has managed to do better than hold his own against the top-notchers in the south and only recently added a triumph over Honey Roy Wilkes, of Macon, to his list of victories.

Although there will be a total of 39 rounds of boxing on the Tuesday night program, Miller yet has to arrange for one of his six-round preliminary bouts. One already booked calls for a clash between two local scrappers. Local boys will also be featured in the four-round bout on the program.

Tickets for the match are on sale at Chess' Place at popular prices, so Miller says. He declared that women were not to be admitted free of charge Tuesday night. Like the quietest sex, they must pay the regular rate of admission.

Phi Delta Theta Cagers Win, 15-13

Last week two more fraternities fell by the wayside in the Tech gym for the annual interfraternity basketball tournament. The Phi Delta Theta quint defeated the Pi K. A. team, 15-13. Jetton and Muse were the stars for the Phi Delta Theta team while Camp and Tracy performed best for the losing quint. The Kappa Alpha team succeeded in noosing out the strong Sigma Nu boys in a nip-and-tuck battle that proved to be the fastest game played so far in the tournament play. The final score was 21-19. Before was the star of the fray, his 12 points paying the way for his team to win. Rusk, Philips and Woodcock were the big guns for Sigma Nu.

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.

That Famous Old Saying.

The duffers' brigade is back at work at East Lake today, looking for golf balls in divot marks left by $4,000 golf clubs and trying to ape the style of some favorite cash customer. The Southern Open is all finished except the play-off this afternoon and most of the golfers are on their way to Asheville in search of gold, or more gold, as the case may be.

Out of all this thing of scoring and winning and losing and allying by those who did not win, there is one definite conclusion to be drawn. It is not a new conclusion, nor startling, but the Southern Open furnished another link in the evidence which has now become unquestionable.

Bobby Jones is the greatest golfer of all time. We of Atlanta take that fact for granted, and have done so for several years, but when such nationally-known golf scribes as were in attendance at East Lake last week add their voices and proofs to the voice of Dixie, it serves to strengthen the stand taken by all southerners.

Saturday night at the Biltmore we were discussing Robert Tyre with a golf writer of national fame, who is here from New York to chronicle the victory of the master weaver of golfing skeins. This is what he said of Bob: "There is no use trying to question the leadership of Bob Jones. As every tournament approaches, where amateur golfers are concerned, there are a few favorites who figure in the money before the play starts. These names are changeable with the seasons, with the exception of one. This winter it was Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Farrell and one or two others among the professionals, and last year there were other names on the list of favorites, BUT THE NAME OF BOBBY JONES STAYS AT THE TOP THROUGH THE YEARS. He is ALWAYS among the chief contenders—something that cannot be said of any other golfer in the world."

We repeat that statement because it echoes the judgment of a man who cannot possibly be influenced by Dixie pride and whose opinion is backed by a score of years in the golf-writing game. He has seen a lot of them come and go and has seen Bobby Jones come but show no signs of going. His name is Kerr Petrie, a great sports writer and as fine a gentleman.

Henderson Is Winner Of Swimming Title

Miami Beach, Fla., March 27.—(United News.)—A. J. Henderson, of Miami, won the 220-yard junior national swimming championship, Betty Andrew, of West Point, Ind., was first in the girls' 220 event.

Henderson's time was 2:30 3-5. Fred Spencer, of Cleveland, Ohio, representing the Yale swimming team, was second.

Miss Andrews' time was 2:55 4-5.

BUICK TEAM DEFEATS FEDS BY 8-7 SCORE

Although they staged a big rally in the ninth inning and collected a total of five runs, the Commodore Feds were defeated by the Buick Motor company boys at the Federal prison Sunday after the sun had passed the half way mark on its way west. The final score was 8 to 7.

The Motor boys cranked the old apple for a couple of runs in the initial inning and took a two-run lead over the boys out on Ridge avenue. The Buick boys gathered three more runs in the fourth frame while the Feds were held scoreless until the sixth, when they banged out enough base hits to count two runs. The Feds' other runs came in the last frame. The rest of the motor company's runs came in the sixth and seventh frames.

The Feds completely outlit the -itting team, clouting a total of 13 hits off the offerings of Mr. Bennett, who traveled the entire route for the motor company. The Buick boys were held to eight hits by the Feds.

Generals Open Series With Tech Nine Today

Washington and Lee Bringing Strong Team Here for Two-Game Series With Yellow Jackets.

Having breezed through all the opposition put up against them so far this season, Coach Kid Clay's Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets, with their pretty little flags on their arms, will entertain the Washington Generals in the first of a two-game series on Grant field this afternoon. The game is slated to get under way around 4 o'clock.

NORTH, SOUTH SIDE SCHOOLS IN BIG MEET

Six teams from the north side and a like number from the south side of Atlanta will compete in the annual Tech relays to be held Saturday afternoon, April 9, on Grant Field. It was announced by Coach W. A. Alexander, chairman of the relay committee and father of the annual Tech classic. The elimination races were held during the past week and the six winners from each division will compete for the grand division medals in the relay carnival.

In the north side division Tenth Street won out for sixth place in a special race held following a tie with Home Park and Calloun. The last of the north side team to enter the relays include, Spring Street, Moreland Avenue, State Street, Highland Avenue, A. W. Smiley and Tenth Street.

In the south side division Farmwell, Key, Georgia Avenue, Fair Street, Slaton and Crew Street will vie for honors.

The winners in each division in the relays will be awarded medals.

More than 3,000 tickets have been given to school children of the city and a large crowd will be on hand in foot for the respective grammar school teams in the race which should be as spirited and hold as much interest as any of the others on the program.

Princeton, Chicago Renew Relations

Chicago, March 27.—(P)—Princeton and the University of Chicago today renewed their gridiron rivalry by signing an agreement for a home-and-home football series in 1929 and 1930, playing at Princeton first and then at Chicago.

Rochester, Albany Play at Bainbridge

Bainbridge, Ga., March 27.—The Rochester, N. Y., baseball team versus the Albany, N. Y., team at Bainbridge, Ga., April 2, is expected to attract one of the biggest crowds ever seen here for a game of sports. The game is scheduled for Saturday afternoon, April 2, and it is being thoroughly advertised.

With the Rochester team are Heine Groh, Rabbit Maranville and Kase Wilhelm. The Albany, N. Y., team which is in spring training here will play the Philadelphia Athletics in Waycross Tuesday, March 28.

This modern age knows that Camel goodness is dependable

THIS modern age is the hardest to please ever known, and it delights in Camel. The smokers of today find tobacco enjoyment in Camels, for their goodness always is so dependable. The choicest tobaccos, and the most superb blending known to the smoking art are Camels.

In Camel you will find out what modern smokers demand—a smoothness, mildness and mellowness that you've never known before. That's why Camels never fail to meet the strict, exacting demands of present-day smokers. This modern age knows the sure call to smoke enjoyment: "Have a Camel!"

"A population of 500,000 by 1930" is Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

Bobby Jones Does Much To Advertise Atlanta

There are many ways to favorably advertise a city, or state but much time will elapse before another event will take place in Georgia that will so favorably advertise this grand old empire state as the southern golf tournament that ends here today.

This golf tournament, due to having the largest cash money prize ever put up, drew the best in professional golf. Being an open event the cream of the amateur world were here as well and due to the national fame of these players the eyes of the civilized world have been turned on Atlanta for two or three weeks.

If the courageous and sterling young men who compose the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce were to endeavor to buy the splendid advertising Atlanta has already received and will continue to receive for a long time to come, and pay for the same at any kind of advertising rates, $12,000 would not have gotten them out of the state of Georgia. Whereas, yesterday, today, tomorrow, and for weeks to come story and story of the brilliant plays and finishes of this big tournament will be told, again and again.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, however, had the most popular man in the world in the "Great Jones," as their main drawing card and when it was known that he was to play, the entries of the other stars began to come in, and the public rallied to the cause and made the event a splendid financial success.

Atlanta has been the home of many great statesmen and men and women who have won great renown in many walks of life but never has there been a man who so consistently and favorably forced the eyes of the world on his native city as Robert Tyre Jones. More than eleven years ago he passed since Bobby Jones first left his home town to compete with the old masters in golf and ever since that time, whether at home or abroad, his golf playing has been of the spectacular or sensational kind that thrills those who see him play and excites interest and admiration from all those who follow him in the public press.

Atlanta and Atlanta's people may spend much money in many ways to further and favorably advertise Atlanta, but it is hard to conceive how better results may be attained than setting aside a large body of labor to be

BIG SUPPLY HOUSE COOPERATING WITH THEIR CUSTOMERS

This is a busy time of the year for the Pickett Plumbing Supply company, of 117 South Pryor street, and their house force is kept on the jump filling large and small orders.

This big company carries everything required in the plumbing line. They buy in carload lots and sell to everyone, anywhere, in whatever quantity wanted. This means that their big four-story building is a busy place at all times and seasons of the year.

This firm does a big business with people living in the country who install their own water plants or septic systems and it is not an unusual sight to see the farmers' trucks of nearby states loading up some plumbing supplies which either they or their friends back home need.

This firm also does considerable business with building and road contractors who require much pipe in their construction work. During the past year many garage men from the country and small towns became regular customers and several dairymen also bought in large quantities. The Pickett Plumbing Supply company has been passing an extra profit on to all out-of-town customers who order from them, their plan being that the purchase bill amounts to $100 or more they will pay the freight to any part of Georgia. When the customer lives outside the state they will equalize the freight rate, paying the same to the Georgia line. As this firm has nice samples and showrooms which are easily located, they invite all those contemplating doing any kind of plumbing work, large or small, to come by and get their prices on whatever is needed.

Southern Will Assist Apple Blossom Festival

"The suggestion of an 'Apple Blossom Festival' at Cornelia is a splendid one and I personally will be glad to see such an event arranged which the Southern railway system will be glad to assist in every way possible," said Assistant General Passenger Agent J. C. Beam, of the Southern, in speaking of the proposed festival.

The country around Cornelia is among the most picturesque to be found on the 8,000 miles of the Southern railway. Beam added, "and at no time is it as pretty as when the apple trees are in full bloom. I am sure that every one who makes the trip to Cornelia will feel amply repaid and that the festival will give that section of Georgia a great deal of the most valuable kind of publicity."

When the first "Apple Blossom Festival" was held at Fort Valley it was doubted whether people would travel as far as from Atlanta to see something of an experiment but it proved so successful that it had to be operated in several sections and even larger crowds were drawn from Atlanta in the following years.

"If the people of Cornelia and the surrounding country organize a festival to celebrate the blooming of the apple trees, I am sure that it will attract thousands of visitors and give many people the opportunity to become acquainted with the beauties of that attractive section."

It is hoped by promoters of the festival that the people of Georgia will quickly realize the opportunity an "Apple Blossom Festival" projected on a large scale will do to advertise Georgia, and while Cornelia is the logical place to hold the big festival it will help every apple grower in Georgia, and what will help the apple grower will help all Georgia and in this connection the Southern railway can be depended on to give special service and the fullest cooperation, insuring the successful handling of the transportation features.

Vitrolite Products Company Do Big Business First Year

Very few people who live in Atlanta really appreciate what this city has in its asset column. We all agree that the city is beautiful, but few of us realize that the memorial is something to be proud of, but we don't know what other people think of this wonderful monument and the material that is being inscribed thereon. The same is true of our industries. The Interstate Marble and Tile company, Stone Mountain, in February, 1926 and last year they did over $500,000 in vitrolite, tile, marble, terrazzo and accessory contracts in the southeast.

The Interstate Marble and Tile company is a subsidiary of the Vitrolite Products company and the parent company, located at 10 and 12 Baker street, N. W., just off the Peachtree, where all kinds of materials for floor and wall coverings are carried and are on display. The services of the art department of either the Atlanta or Chicago office does not obligate the builder in any way and it is part of the service to the building industry that is gladly furnished by both the Vitrolite Products company and also the Interstate Marble and Tile company.

practic association, and will lecture under its auspices. A report from the association said: "Everybody is interested in living as long as possible, but few know how to apply the simple rules of health which assure long life. Dr. Margetts, in his lectures, not only gives the rules for health, happiness and long life, but he does so in such a delightful manner that his audiences are actually surprised at the simplicity of it all. Dr. Margetts lectures on health subjects from the standpoint of the average man. He does not use technical terms, he does not seek to make the gaining of health mysterious and complicated, and he does not give his hearers a long list of 'Don'ts.'"

Admission to Dr. Margetts' lecture is by courtesy of the Atlanta Chiropractic association, and an invitation to attend has been extended to the general public.

APPLE BLOSSOM FESTIVAL WILL HELP INDUSTRY

C. R. Porter, of Rome, Ga., vice president of the Porter Brothers Farm corporation, which owns large apple orchards in this state, in discussing plans for an apple blossom festival, points to the fact that the Consolidated Apple Growers' exchange at Cornelia, Ga., is doing much to educate the people of Georgia to the fact that the Georgia apple is fast becoming the superior of any apples shipped to this state.

Mr. Porter points out that while the apple industry of Georgia represents an investment of over ten millions, it is just in its infancy and increased capital will further develop this industry until it will rank as one of the leading industries in the state.

"Georgia," continued Mr. Porter, "leads every state in the south with the exception of Virginia, where the industry has long been established, and the choice apples grown here are in demand everywhere in the north and east and even great quantities of these apples are shipped to Great Britain by the eastern buyers."

"Just at present, however," said Mr. Porter, "we are trying to make the Georgia apple better known in Uncle Sam's domain and an apple-blossom celebration, like the peach festival, will help to do it. As the time is short, we will welcome helpful suggestions that will make it a big success."

ATLANTA CONCERN SELLING ENVELOPES IN EVERY STATE

Thirty-three years ago a small plant started in business in Atlanta. Its field of operation was necessarily limited; its customers outside of the city of Atlanta were few. Today this same concern—the Atlanta Envelope company—has regular customers in all sections of the country and is recognized as the largest manufacturer of commercial envelopes, exclusively, in the entire southeast.

"An interesting thing in connection with our country-wide business," stated Mr. S. G. Guthrie, president of the Atlanta Envelope company, "is the fact that most of this business is sold on the merits of the envelopes themselves. By this I mean that we have relatively few salesmen outside of this immediate territory and the bulk of these orders come in by mail."

"If the average buyer of envelopes would ever take time to watch mail as it is handled in sacks on trains, he would certainly take a keener interest in the quality of his envelopes. Railway mail clerks simply must make speed in handling mail and they are obliged to toss the mail sacks around without using any kind of gloves. Poorly made envelopes do not stand the gaff and invariably arrive at their destination in poor condition. On the other hand, envelopes that are strongly made, of durable materials, will travel across the continent and back without suffering materially from handling."

The Atlanta Envelope company, in its Stewart avenue plant, is now making practically every known variety of commercial envelope. Particularly popular of recent months has been the "window" type of en-

GOOD WORK BUILDS NICE TRADE FOR ALL GOOD WORKMEN

Atlanta has several good mattress factories and renovating plants, and in addition to doing work for home folks much work is sent in here by out-of-town people.

One of the busiest at this time is the Superior Mattress company, of 129 Bankhead avenue, who are now in their fifth year at this same location, and have customers in all parts of Fulton and adjoining counties.

This firm is composed of two young men, H. R. Simon and W. D. Meadows, who learned their trade with one of the old factories in Atlanta. They brought to their own business the experience they gained by many years in this line and then by doing good guaranteed work, they have built up a trade of satisfied customers that means increasing business as the years go by. These young men, both being fine workmen themselves, see that no work leaves their shop that does not live up to the promise made the customer. They have the ability and equipment to do anything that may be wanted in the mattress line.

Mr. Simon says that no matter how many mattresses they may have in their shop at one time, every customer has the positive assurance that though the cotton of their mattress is regined and cleaned, each customer gets her own cotton back in her new mattress, for under their system of handling work no one gets the cotton or other filling that comes in their old mattress but the party who sent in the same.

Mr. Meadows wished to call attention also that they have the finest line of new and fancy ticking this year that they have ever had and that all those giving them a ring at Hemlock 9274 will find that the Superior Mattress company can live up to its names and do superior work.

Plans for Apple Blossom Festival Rapidly Maturing

The plans of the apple blossom festival to be held in the next two weeks are rapidly taking shape and will be definitely decided upon in the next few days, according to J. Frank Beck, prominent Atlanta business man and president of the Consolidated Apple Growers' exchange.

While it is true the time is short to stage a mammoth apple blossom festival this year, yet by quick action a very creditable outdoor pageant can be held. With the amusement features and nature itself with the aid of man, providing a most beautiful sight in the miles and miles of apple blossoms that will be well worth coming miles to see.

Mr. Beck, who has just returned to Atlanta after making a careful survey of the conditions of several orchards in Habersham county, predicts that the apple blossoms will be at their prettiest about April 5, 6 and 7, and they will make their preparations to hold some very creditable observations on one or two days at that time.

MEN WHO MADE THE WORLD

King Richard I.

DESPITE THE PERIL WHICH RICHARD WAS IN, HE TOOK THE DANGER EASILY, RELYING ON HIS RESOURCEFULNESS TO CARRY HIM THROUGH. AFTER TRAVELING FOR MANY DAYS BY LONELY ROADS THROUGH THE MOUNTAINS, RICHARD REACHED A LARGE TOWN BUT DARED NOT PASS THROUGH IT WITHOUT A PASSPORT. SO HE SENT FORWARD A PAGE TO PRESENT A VALUABLE RUBY RING TO THE GOVERNOR AND REQUEST A PASSPORT FOR A PILGRIM MERCHANT. THE GOVERNOR, UPON EXAMINING THE RING SAID TO THE PAGE: "THIS IS NOT THE GIFT OF A PILGRIM. YOUR MASTER IS RICHARD, KING OF ENGLAND."

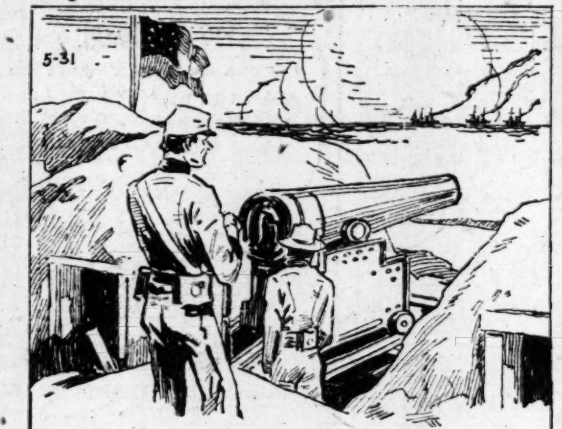

THE HARDSHIPS RICHARD HAD ENDURED WERE NOW BEGINNING TO TELL UPON HIM AND HE FELL ILL WITH FATIGUE AND HUNGER. WITH THE PAGE HE ENTERED A SMALL ABANDONED COTTAGE NEAR VIENNA. HE SENT THE YOUTH INTO A NEARBY VILLAGE FOR SUPPLIES, BUT THE YOUTH WAS SEIZED AND TORTURED TILL HE CONFESSED WHO AND WHERE RICHARD WAS. IMMEDIATELY SOLDIERS WERE SENT TO CAPTURE HIM.

OBSERVING THE ARRIVAL OF THE SOLDIERS, RICHARD SEIZED HIS SWORD AND RUSHED TO A CORNER WHERE HE COULD DEFEND HIMSELF. THE SOLDIERS, BELIEVING THEY SHOULD TAKE HIM ALIVE, CEASED THEIR ATTACK. RICHARD SURRENDERED AND WAS IMPRISONED IN THE CASTLE OF TIENSTEDT EARLY IN THE YEAR 1193.

Atlanta May Expect Large Number Visitors This Year

As the eyes of the country are now focused upon the south more than any other time in the past, it is but natural that Atlanta as a gateway will look upon more than ever as a stop-over city for people traveling in all directions.

The renewed activities at Stone Mountain, where the great memorial project is again nicely under way, justifies the prediction that many thousands of people will take advantage of this year of visiting the great project and Atlanta is sure to have a record breaking year for visitors.

Visitors Expected.

A big city is more than a big household and if the members of a big household were told that they were going to have many visitors, every member would be glad to prepare for the company and Atlanta is sure to have many "company" this year, and every one of the 43,000 homes and buildings in Atlanta owes it to him or herself to do their part and "dress up" their property for company.

A beautiful city is a good place in which to live, and each property owner in Atlanta can make his own property look better than it does now and in this way help Atlanta while helping their own property values.

One of the most prominent and beloved evangelists that ever visited Atlanta last week was driving his car and he's a careful driver—near Columbus. There was a collision on the highway—and three men were hurt.

You Can't Avoid Accidents; Insure Yourself Today

Can you avoid accidents? The answer is "no," emphatically "no."

One of the most prominent and beloved evangelists that ever visited Atlanta last week was driving his car and he's a careful driver—near Columbus. There was a collision on the highway—and three men were hurt.

A beautiful city is a good place in which to live, and each property owner in Atlanta can make his own property look better than it does now and in this way help Atlanta while helping their own property values.

The Constitution offers you the famous $7,500 travel accident policy issued by the North American Life Insurance company, an honest, reliable concern which already has paid more than $50,000 on claims of Constitution policy-holders.

The cost is only $1.25 per year, the fractional part of a penny a day. The policy provides for payment of sums ranging downward from $7,500 in case of death resulting from certain specified accidents; heavy cash sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the accidents enumerated.

Can you afford to take chances with the future comfort of your wife and children. A train wreck, a crash of autos, the onrushing wheels of a speeding car, a burning building, may make you a victim of an accident today.

Against all these emergencies the $7,500 travel accident policy guards you.

Catch for advertisements appearing regularly in this paper which supply full details of the unparalleled offer. This $7,500 travel, $2,000 auto and $1,000 life insurance policy is issued only to subscribers of The Daily and Sunday Constitution and immediately dependent members of a subscription.

One who is now taking The Daily and Sunday Constitution, or will subscribe for same through carrier in Atlanta or suburbs, or through an out-of-town carrier or dealer, paying for the paper weekly, monthly or otherwise, is a subscriber and is eligible.

Those taking The Daily and Sunday Constitution by mail, either through a postoffice or rural route delivery, and all those subscribing through the twin-word building contest for one year, are eligible for the policy.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation. If beneficiary is desired, full Christian name must be given and the relation of same to the insured.

hursat county, Virginia, and was a student at Emory and Henry college, Emory, Va., when the civil war broke out. He enlisted when 19 years of age in company I, Nineteenth Virginia infantry, and was promoted to first lieutenant and resigned by reason of physical disability due to wounds received in the battle of Seven Pines in May, 1862. He afterwards joined the Second Virginia cavalry, company E, under Captain Tom White, and was in the battles of Beaver Dam and Fredericksburg.

He was commander of Chattanooga county Sons of Veterans at the time of death.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday morning at 10 o'clock from Lyerly Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. O. J. McDermott, will be assisted by Rev. H. L. Berd, of Lafayette. Interment will be in Lyerly cemetery.

Surviving are his widow and one daughter, Miss Louise Taliferro.

J. W. CANNON, PIONEER MACON BANKER, DIES

Macon, Ga., March 27.—(P)—J. W. Cannon, 63, vice president of the Macon Savings bank, and one of Macon's oldest bankers, died at his home here at 2 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Cannon was born in Savannah, but came here when a boy and obtained a job as messenger in the Macon Savings bank, where he worked his way up to the vice presidency.

He is survived by his widow and two daughters and two sons.

PLAN TO REASSIGN RADIO LENGTHS

New York, March 27.—(P)—Reassignment of radio wave lengths in a manner that will bring order out of the chaos existing in the present broadcasting situation can be accomplished within 60 days without disrupting any of the 733 existing stations in the United States, it was announced today by the National Association of Broadcasters and the Radio Manufacturers association.

A plan which it is claimed will bring about this result had been drafted by the two associations and will be presented at a hearing to be held in Washington Tuesday by the federal radio control commission.

Preliminary assignment of six exclusive wave lengths to Canada, the associations said, will take care of at least six major stations in the dominion. In addition it was pointed out the Canadians for two years have shared time on 12 other wave lengths and it is proposed to add four channels to this number. It is claimed that these 16 shared wave lengths will be ample to accommodate all of Canada's 36 stations under their existing power.

On the American share of these 16 channels, the associations said it is possible to accommodate the 31 stations of 500 watt power located in the southern part of the United States and also take care of 150 of the American 50 watt stations without working a hardship on any of them. This would leave 73 exclusive channels for the remaining 547 American stations.

Twenty-two of these channels would be used for the 139 existing stations of 500 watts, an average of six stations to each channel. Considering power and geographical location, the associations said this "can in all probability be well worked out."

This would leave 51 channels to accommodate the 113 American stations now operating on 1,000 watts or more. Most of this power went into the stations per channel, which the plan said presents a hopeful situation.

Lyons, Ga., March 27.—(Special.) Miss Cornelia Holton, 18, was drowned in the Ochopee river in the edge of Tattall county this morning when the boat in which she and her cousin, Bernice New, were towing, struck swift water and went over Nails dam. Both continued to hold to the boat until it sank and Miss Holton then swam about 50 yards down the river and sank, while New, a boy about 16 years old, swam to the shore.

Horace Eason, aged about 60, the owner of the person on the scene, who lives at the dam, hurried to her rescue but the girl went down the last time as he neared her. The body had not been recovered late today.

The family moved to this locality last December from Trenton county.

STREET WATCHES DURANT DOINGS

New York, March 27.—W. C. Durant is believed by Wall street to have made $100,000,000 in the stock market in the last year or so, a large part of it in General Motors. In an advertisement appearing this week, Durant promises to make a statement on April 17 that will "startle" the automobile industry and prove emphatically that he is back on the job with the intention of turning his back on the stock market and devoting all of his time to a constructive motor-car program.

What is it that Durant is going to try to do? Can Durant, who with the automobile industry in its present shape?

Durant started in the automobile industry in 1903 with the Buick company. He made enough money out of Buick to buy Cadillac, Oldsmobile, Oakland and several other companies with which, in 1908, he formed General Motors.

In 1910 General Motors became overextended and Durant lost control to a group of Wall street bankers. It was not until 1913, however, before Durant organized the Chevrolet company, from which he made so much money that he was able to buy back control of General Motors.

After the very beginning of the post-war deflation period in 1920 Durant lost control of General Motors. He was not until 1923, however, before Durant organized the Chevrolet company, from which he made so much money that he was able to buy back control of General Motors.

Within a year or so after 1920 Durant surprised the motor world by forming the Durant Motor company, which he made so much money that he was able to buy back control of General Motors.

Durant knew how to make money in the stock market and for the time being let his automobile interests drift. It now appears that with the $100,000,000 he has made in the stock market in the last year or so he is going back into the automobile manufacturing game in earnest to try to get back into the automobile manufacturing game.

Durant is that kind of a man. He proved it in 1923 when he lost an enormous personal fortune trying to protect his friends who on his advice had bought General Motors stock. He proved it in 1924 when he lost a fortune in the automobile manufacturing game when Wall street had him counted out. He certainly has made a wonderful recovery in his personal fortune in the past year or so through the stock market. Can he come back in the automobile manufacturing end? He has done it before when the odds were heavily against him. He may do it again.

Wall Street's Guess.

Wall street's guess is that Durant is going to drop the Durant Motor company, which made a poor start and concentrated on the Star Motor company, which has been going ahead in a quiet way. According to gossip in Wall street automobile circles the Star Motor company is to be revamped and Durant, like Leocomobile and perhaps other companies that will be included.

It is true that General Motors stock put Durant in financial shape to go ahead with ambitious plans. But it is going to be some time before the Star Motor company gives General Motors any troublesome competition. The Star company now has a daily output of 125 cars. The Chevrolet unit of General Motors alone has a daily output of 4,300 cars.

Chevrolet has even gone ahead of Ford. There was a time when Ford's daily output was close to 10,000. It is now down to 3,500 or far below Chevrolet.

Ford is another one that Wall street has repeatedly counted out. Wall street thinks now that Ford has definitely shot his bolt. There are people, however, who think otherwise. Those in the class last named think Ford and Durant will both come back.

A well known Wall street banker prominent in the automobile industry who has no reason to be friendly with Ford but who believes Ford will come back, expressed the belief today in talking over the automobile situation and outlook that Ford is now making $800,000 a year merely on new parts for cars already sold. He added with a laugh that that was enough to keep the wolf from the door.

He pointed out too that Ford, owning all of the stock of his company, could lose $50,000,

Lyman settled back in his chair and continued his story to the reporters.

"A man don't feel many times in his life the way I felt then! I hadn't ever really expected to get anything like this on her! I the same as had the sharpest kind of whip in my hand and could cut off her and Leland's heads—for, of course, you've realized all along it was Leland I meant—with one snap. 'Well, my lady, I thought, your papa certainly will tear the heart out of you and I before your face for this! What price all the rotten, insulting dirt you have slung at me, now? Why, the time of night her father'd only have to ring and have the porters throw Leland right out of the hotel! Right under her eyes! Gee, she'd soon find out what it'd be like to have Lyman Hertzog stand by her or not stand by her! By jinx, I had her where I wanted her now, all right!

"But her papa, of course, was the one to handle the situation. The maid came in again, locking the door behind her, and Dulcie yelled for her to come help pick up the pieces of the bathroom. So I made my getaway as far as the door, unlocked it, scooted through—and then, for some reason, I turned and looked back. Right through, out to the balcony. And coming up over the balcony railing was a hand.

"Say, then I whispered to myself, 'There's a God all right!' There I stood and watched. I can't exactly say whether it was a shoulder or a leg came over next but there was a sort of a hand and then the whole flat shadow of a man stood up on the balcony. He came through the dark into the light room and he wasn't Dan Leland, either. It was this Henry Horner I told you about, the bum I had to throw out of my scenario department."

Lyman's audience gave a stir of freshened interest but he himself seemed stuck in a dead calm. Suddenly he burst out but there was not going to think my deduction any ways unnatural, gentlemen. Remember my idea still was she expected not him but Leland—I wouldn't drop that in a minute, could I. So I made for old Mack and told him, 'Snap out of it! You go stand outside her door and don't let anybody out that way. While I speak to the proprietor.' Then, as I turned to send for him, I heard a queer sound.

"It was quite a distance off and then all of a sudden it was close. Not any kind of machine, it turned out, but a roar of mixed yells and curses with musical instruments twotling. You, in your profession, gentlemen, maybe got used to the noise a mob makes. But over in this country anyhow they don't play screechy pipes and drums or anything crazy that way when they get after people. Down runs one of the staff from an upper window yelling to the proprietor how they were coming in from the desert, hollering for money that was owing to them. Then I was on. It was my treasurer's blood they were after. 'In luck,' I said to myself. 'Not it came to me how much better they could do my job than the hotel could. Henry Horner, making a fool of me all this time, with his head shaved off today and standing on the corner of the street in a white suit holding her hand! Maybe after all, gentlemen, away down in what you may have heard that modern science calls the subconscious mind, I had an inkling! Maybe I'd had it all along, before I fired my rner, while I was nowed under with what seemed so plain about Leland! Only I didn't listen to hear how it clicked! And now for the showdown!

"By the time the first of them had got round into the street, I was in a window over the front door cutting off the interpreter they'd brought with 'em—our in' terpreter, if you please. Hertzog had hired—telling him to tell them it wasn't me had done them out of their money; my treasurer'd started out with it but had been attacked on the way and robbed, murdered maybe—I thought he had, you know—but unless I was much mistaken I had just laid eyes on the thief."

There was a tiny piece of ice in the bottom of Lyman's glass; he floated, captured, swallowed it.

"Come Bedlam! Now, listen, I told them. 'Don't take my word, maybe I made a mistake. But about the same time as you could be heard coming in here I saw a man climb up the side of the hotel and hide on the balcony,' and I pointed back through the lobby across the courtyard. 'When the light from the room there fell on his face, I saw it was an old employee of mine I'd discharged in America and who's had a spite against me ever since. I found out today he's followed me over here and been living here in disguise. Maybe he didn't steal my money. Maybe he hasn't got your pay roll. But, if he hasn't, why did he climb up the side of a house when he heard you coming? I saw him climb up like a thief in the night and creep into that room! If he had any honest business there, why didn't he go in by the door? He's hidden there in that room, now! Ask him where your money is!' I said. 'If he says he hasn't got it, ask him what he's doing there at this time of night. Ask him? And I didn't have to say it again because, believe me, whatever the interpreter had translated or left out, they had started with a rush to ask Horner."

"By the time I'd chased to my room and out onto my own balcony to see the show they'd pushed past everything the hotel police could do to hold 'em and were getting through into the court. Nor they hadn't lost track of which were Miss Jayne's windows. They could see her from the balcony. Henry Horner with one leg over the balcony, trying to get down, and there was Dulcie Jayne holding onto him, trying to keep him up. 'Say, I can tell I never got her number till I saw her then! Even if she was raised in the gutter I'd know she stood up to everybody the kid had the makings of a lady. And now she was getting four thousand a week and known all over the globe as an ingenue star, worse than you. She'd have shown a little regard for her reputation. Nix, gentlemen, not a blub in her! A low down-and-out piker that's been hiding over here with a beard grown onto him and working for his meal ticket with a lot of niggers that were howling now to lynch him! After they'd caught him in her room in the middle of the night, I could think she'd be praying for me and her father to save her face. But what reasonable actions can you expect from a girl that's got no shame? There she hung clutched round him, tight as a spider, arguing, as I know now, to let him get away through the crowd before I recognized him or found out their secret. I loosening one of her hands and then the other. She not saying a word but fighting to hold onto him. And more and more the crowd pouring into the courtyard! So what chance he'd ever had of knocking down the first few and sprinting on those long legs of his was lost already. And the girl still holding onto him like a crab. Till finally he got both her hands off him at the same time and gave her such a shove down she fell onto her knees with the breath knocked out of her."
